Caruthersville mayor urges citizens to use guns on burglars

CARUTHERSVILLE - Mayor B.F. "Hot" Rogers Thursday urged his townspeople to "get your shotguns out and shoot anybody that's trying to break into your home," in response to a wave of house burglaries.

City Attorney Byron Luber said some burglaries seem to have been committed by professional thieves. They have occurred at "five real good homes" in less than a month, the 12-man Caruthersville police force, headed by Chief Jess Johnson, has so far apparently been unable to make a dent in the crime wave.

"I don't believe I've ever seen anything like it," said Mayor Rogers. "The police are trying real hard, but the thieves are outsmarting 'em. It's getting worse, not better."

The burglars have "generally hit homes with a lot of good merchandise to take," said Luber. "Basically all these burglaries have been at good homes when the people were not at home, at night and during the weekend."

"I've personally been a victim of it myself," he added, "and my law partner has been hit twice."

Insurance companies have paid "somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000" in claims since the first of the year to burglary victims, the mayor said. The stolen goods have included such items as silver, cut glass and jewelry, none of which is "staying in the area," said Rogers.

"Somehow or other I feel like that some of these thieves are turning it into a business," Rogers said, "It seems to me like they might have a fence where they can peddle this merchandise and it seems to be coming from something of a professional angle.

"When they crawl on top of a house and cut a hole in the top and go down through to bypass a burglar alarm. It's gotta be some knowledgeable person in regards to the thievery."

"I would say that people need to be armed to protect themselves and damage the people that are doing the breaking-in" Rogers said, "Arm themselves with shotguns or whatever else they need to do it with and eliminate 'em. That's my honest opinion."

When asked if an armed citizenry might not lead to a hazardous situation, he replied, "I think it would lead to the elimination of (the burglaries). I see the genuine elimination of the thievery if there were one or two of those jobs done."

Luber said, "Most citizens around here would probably take that advice if their shotguns hadn't already been stolen, but I would say that that statement was made with no particular significance behind it."

But one citizen said, "I just hope people around here don't take Mayor Rogers literally. They'll be digging their own graves."

U.S. medical facilities superior to Russia, says local doctor

By SUSIE PAYNE

After recently concluding a three-week medical facilities tour of Belgium, Sweden, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland, Dr. Max Heeb of Sikeston decided that it is really good to be home.

The tour, sponsored by People-To-People International, was a diplomatic travel program where delegation members met with American Embassy officials and local medical representatives to see and inspect medical and hospital facilities and compare methods and procedures.

People-To-People International, is a nonprofit, nongovernmental organizational founded in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to promote world peace through internal understanding.

In his visits to Brussels, Stockholm Moscow, Prague, Leningrad and Zurich, Heeb determined that Switzerland had the best facilities. Russia had the worst.

Switzerland's rehabilitation program is more advanced than America's, Heeb said. They appear to spend more money on physiotherapy, but actual results of the treatment were not disclosed, Heeb said.

Although Russia has more doctors per capita, they are not well trained, Heeb said. Heeb believes medical training is not a priority with the Russian government.

Dr. Max Heeb

In order to become a doctor in Russia, a person only has five years of medical training after the 10th grade and then he is qualified to practice.

Access to medical care in Russia also is not good, Heeb said. To receive medical treatment, a person must enter a hospital or polyclinic. There are doctors for the hospital and doctors for the polyclinic. They do not intermingle. Also, to receive treatment from these facilities, the sick must be advised by a doctor only.

Ninety per cent of polyclinic patients enter for treatment on the advice of a doctor's house call, but house calls are only made because it is easier when entering a tenement building, common Russia, to check door-to-door for sickness.

Therefore, for a sick person to enter a polyclinic and then a hospital if necessary, he must be well enough to get there for the examination first. This delays treatment.

Facilities in Russia were filthy and poorly equipped, Heeb said, but he stressed that the tour group had seen the country's best.

To Heeb, American facilities are more advanced and technological. He said the work of American gynecologists is more advanced than in all of the countries on the tour.

Sikeston PCA 2nd in region

Farmers are a unique segment of American society, representing less than two per cent of the country's labor force, members of the Sikeston Production Credit association were told Thursday night.

The statement was made by J.N. Smith, professor of agriculture at Southwest Missouri State University, the meetings guest speaker.

The meeting, held at the high school band shell drew over 1,000 persons.

Ray Fowler of New Madrid Route One and Louis Kalkbrenner of Poplar Bluff were re-elected to three year terms on the board of directors.

The farmer's significance to the country is something that many people fail to understand, Smith said.

"Farmers represent a very elite corps," he said. In some countries, up to 75 per cent of the labor force is engaged in food production, he pointed out.

That two percent of the labor force is becoming more skilled, more proficient and smarter investors than before, he said.

Farmers have shown themselves to be excellent businessmen. People once scoffed at the idea that farmers could loan money, but the growth and success of the PCA has shown them otherwise, he said.

"People don't understand that farmers have a vested interest in the PCA," he said.

Something equally significant, he said, is the freedom farmer's have to work and meet.

"There isn't one of you who asked permission to come here," he said.

Smith said that for many years he has met with farm groups from overseas and many have said they cannot do things or meet without asking permission from their government.

He said he knew of one group he wished was at Thursday night's meeting. They would be looking around rying to figure out who the censor was, he said.

The Sikeston PCA has grown over the years, he said, and can still grow, but not if the members take the organization for granted and let it slip away.

There are three things members need to do to make the PCA or any other organization work, he said.

They must express themselves through their vote, require the board of directors to train and retrain its staff, and demand new services and new programs.

The Sikeston PCA received a plaque for being the second best PCA in the Sixth Farm Credit District, comprising Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois.

The award was presented by Eugene J. Tally, vice president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis.

Tally said the margin between Sikeston and the winner was so narrow, it was decided to give a runner up plaque to Sikeston.

Sikeston has twice been the number one office in the district.

The financial statement given to members showed the PCA's networth had jumped $1 million from $7,258,000 to $6,339,000 during the year. Income was about the same as last year.

Named to the nominating committee to select director candidates for 1978 were : Lee Kennedy of Sikeston, Charles "Chuck" Holiman, of Portageville; Emmett Barke of Charleston, Bill Pippins of Dexter; Daryl Hardin of Poplar Bluff; Paul Meier of Jackson and Merritt E. Taylor of Advance.

RUSSIA LOOKS BACKWARD

..The Soviet Union's next constitution, which has been published in draft form and will be adopted this fall after controlled "debate," is a strangley old fashioned, even reactionary, document.

This is ironic for a society which claims to be "progessive," "advanced" and "scientific."

Its new constitution is in fact more backward than the one written by colonial farmers, merchants and lawyers in Philadelphia 190 years earlier.

The most striking difference between the two charters is their views of the individual.

The 18th-century Americans saw man as having natural rights that government could not abridge.

In modern Russia rights are granted by an all-powerful state which decides how - or if - they will be exercised.

A case in point is the 1936 "Stalin Constitution," which is being replaced.

It contained liberal promises of freedom of press, speech, assembly, religion and privacy.

In practice, however, it gave no protection to millions of innocent persons who were jailed or executed in the dictator's blood purges.

In recent years small numbers of dissidents have pointed to that constitution in calling for human rights denied to them.

They tried to defend themselves against criminal charges by insisting they were only asking for what was guaranteed to them by law.

General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, who expects the new document to make his mark in history, has moved to tighten the line against dissent.

After enumerating the people's rights, his constituition in effect takes them away by adding:

"Exercise by citizens of rights and freedoms must not injure the interest of society and the state..."

In translation this clearly means the people can do just what Big Brother says and no more.

Brezhnev's constitution also strengthens the dominant role of the Communist Party in Soviet life.

The party, it states, is "the ruling and directing power...of all the state and public organizations."

Of course, this has been the state of affairs since the 1917 revolution, but previous constituitions were not so frank about a ruling class in what was supposed to be Marx's classless society.

Minority rule, it turns out, is a problem not only in southern Africa.

What is also notable is the constitution's absence of checks and balances.

It is handed down by the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament run by the party, which also passes any party-desired enabling laws.

There is no judicial review or possibility of appeal.

Moscow's propaganda machine would not agree, of course, but a comparison of the new constitution with America's "bourgeois" document of 1787 would be unfavorable to the former.

By including strong checks and balances the American framers protected the individual from arbitrary government.

By negating its paper promises of rights, the Brezhnev charter protects a ruling elite against its subjects.

Some progress.

The impression most Americans have of the federal government is that of gross inefficiency -- bogged down in red ink, red tape and people doing "busy work" writing memos to one another. For 22 years the U.S. Passport Office under Frances Knight's capable direction was one shining exception.

Knight made the Passport Office increasingly efficient in the face of a spiraling work load. The office processed only 350,000 passports in the year she became director. Now more than two million are issued each year.

Knight cut the time for obtaining a passport from six weeks to three days or less. She simplified the applications from three legal-size pages to one letter-size page. She slimmed the passport itself from 48 pages to 24. Representatives from scores of nations have come to America to study and adopt her techniques. Dozens of cities and travel and transportation agencies have awarded her commendations.

Part of Knight's philosophy of life surfaced when she once told a reporter, "In this business, you've got to choose between popularity and efficient management. You know where I stand." Becaus she ran her bureau efficiently, profitably and on merit, she earned the praise of five presidents andthe respect of high officials and congressmen of both political parties.

She is not popular with the big spenders, with the befuddled bureaucrats trying to make their own jobs look important, or with the assorted leftists who want to dismantle all security safeguards. One senator derisively called her a "super-duper patriot."

The reason the leftists have been gunning for Knight for years is that she has been a stickler for obeying the law and safeguarding national security. She told Congress that in the 1970s there is an average of more than 17,000 U.S. passports reported lost or stolen annually which are never accounted for. Some, of course, are destroyed accidentally. But Knight estimates that more than half of these documents remain outstanding and probably find their way into illicit hands.

She continually alerted Congress to the national security dangers from persons obtaining passports by fraud.

They fall into several basic categories: (1) Communists, (2) drug traffickers, (3) militant groups, (4) confidence men or swindlers, (5) illegal aliens in the United States, (6) fugitives from justice, and (7) imposters.

Knight treaded that narrow line of being always forthright but ever feminine, efficient but not bossy, determined in pursuit of her objectives but gracious to all, independent of judgment but wise in walking the labyrinths of the bureaucracy.

President Carter has made a serious mistake in terminating Francis Knight as director of the Passport Office without even giving her the courtesy of a personal interview.

Maybe he was afraid that if he talked with her, he too, like his five presidential predecessors, would have been so impressed with her competence and dedication that he would have found it impossible to let her go.

President Carter's excuse that it is his policy to abide by the decision of his department head (in this case, Cyrus Vance) is patently untrue. Mr. Carter's General Services administrator, Jack Eckard, resigned precisely because Mr. Carter insisted on the President's right to make GSA appointments over the objections of the department chief.

THOUGHTS FOR THANKSGIVING

We take good things too much for granted at times, don't we?

In a desert when thirst burns, water is valued beyond gold.

After missing a dozen meals, a man knows of few things more important than food.

In a bitter wind how fine it is to have warm clothing.

When winter snow swirls how welcome is a comfortable house.

When pockets are empty how vital money is.

When man is lonely how cheerful friends are.

When he is ill how wonderful health is.

When he is sad how enlivening a merry mood and laughter.

When he has no freedom, how magnificent is liberty.

As a nation, whatever our shortcomings, we have strength and abundance, as a people much compassion, as a symbol and a world power much to offer everyone on earth who loves liberty.

As individuals we have opportunities, perhaps more than are to be found in any other nation, for self-realization.

In a world where freedom is often at bay, we have a mazimum of freedom. Let us pray we have the strength and wisdom to keep it and to make it grow.

If we lost what we now may take for granted, we would realize how valuable it is.

We do have reason for thanksgiving, don't we?

HEARTS ARE TRUMPS

Iggy, a retired furrier, attended Mass every morning. His zest for life made him look much younger than his almost 70 years. He loved to sing, and his rich tenor voice could be heard above all the others in church. But his enthusiasm was so catching that everyone else seemed to sing better when Iggy was there. He almost always had a corny joke to tell after church.

In the fall, Iggy's health began to fail. The doctors discovered he had terminal cancer. After that, Iggy spent most of his time in bed. I sent him cards and visited him when I could, and I always found him cheerful, hoping and praying to get back to church.

The Christmas season that year was a hectic time for me. Our daughter was being married the Saturday after Christmas Day. Absorbed in preparing for the two events, I didn't think much about Iggy. Then on Christmas Eve the phone rang.

As soon as I said hello, I heard the beautiful strains of The Bells of St. Mary's, sung by Iggy. It was one of his favorite songs, and I had never heard him sing better. When he finished he said, "Merry Christmas, bless your heart, and thank you for all your kindness to me."

Soon after, Iggy died. I will never forget him or his Christmas gift to me.

GETTING BACK TO "BASICS"

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that spanking or paddling unruly school students is constitutional, and that hereafter teachers who use that method of control need no longer fear reprisal suits from irate parents. That's getting back to basics.

What could be more basic than the seat of your pants?

Maybe schools can now get back to more basics:

RIGHTS FOR THE HANDICAPPED

The occupation of Health, Education and Welfare Department offices by handicapped demonstrators was an extreme yet understandable cry for redress of a notable grievance, both at the federal and the state level. There is no arguing with the contention of the disabled that they have gotten the runaround when it comes to enforcement of civil rights laws for their benefits. This is true not only of federal inattention, which has been bad enough, but is true of inattention in states such as Missouri, where lack of concern has bordered on blatant.

There was a touch of unfairness about the fact that the brunt of the demonstration in Washington fell upon an HEW secretary who has been in office for only a couple of months. Congress promised the handicapped equal rights in employment, health, education and social services more than three years ago, but the necessary regulations have been slow in coming, and Joseph A. Califano Jr. and his aids have inherited the problem.

Califano took somewhat testy note of this, but undertook to expedite his review of the complex regulations and sign an amended draft by next month. In our judgment, this is fair enough.

Saying this does not imply that the handicapped are overinsistent about their rights. On the contrary, they have the best of reasons to complain and have shown considerable restraint in their justified insistence that their special problems be alleviated by federal action.

The long delay in implementing congressional intent has been inconscionable. The demonstration in Califano's outer office and other HEW facilities is a timely reminder that the law should now be put into effect as rapidly as possible.

THE $64,000 KID
From The Chicago Tribune

An economist down at Florida State University reported the other day that it costs a middle-income family $64,000 to raise and educate a first child. Clearly, in these times of financial austerity and resource shortages, something just has to be done. Maybe a government policy or something.

At first we thought the policy ought to be aimed at redesigning the kids. Possibly developing a nofrills kid—one, say, without hair to be cut or teeth to be straightened.

But the more we thought about it the more we thought the problem might rest with the parents. For instance, our $64,000 model is perfectly willing to subsist on a diet of candy and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. This takes care of the teeth nicely and at the same time ensures layers of blubbery insulation that reduces the need for clothes. It's only our own fanciful and mostly futile insistence on a balanced diet that drives the food costs up.

And then there are the clothes themselves. What is needed here is an urgent declaration from the Government that kids should wear only blue jeans. It's a policy President Carter should find appealing, given his own disposition to wearing blue jeans around the White House. Of course, that's all our $64,000 model will wear anyway. Again, it's our own insistence on more—a diversified wardrobe—that drives up the family expenses.

Furnishings too seem to be more a question of parental tastes than kids' wants. Our $64,000 number has a decided preference for sleeping in a sleeping bag—either on the living room rug or in the back yard, depending upon the weather—rather than in the nifty bed from Denmark purchased for her room.

All and all, then, it seems the Florida prof has slightly misstated the issue. The $64,000 isn't so much what it costs to raise a kid properly as what it costs to buy parental confidence that the kid is being properly raised. An in that light, given the uncertainties inherent in parenthood, we got to thinking that $64,000 over 22 years is not that bad a deal.

"We'd have to cut our paychecks back by more than 80 per cent; move 33 million workers back to the farm; destroy 59 million television sets; tear up 14 of every 15 miles of highway; junk 19 of every 20 automobiles; tear up two thirds of our railroad track; knock down 70 per cent of our houses and rip out nine out of every ten telephones. Then all we have to do is find a capitalist country to sell us wheat on credit to keep us from starving!"

A POWERFUL CONGRESSMAN'S SON FINALLY GETS A GOVERNMENT JOB
By JACK ANDERSON and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The friendly folks who handle patronage at the White House have suddenly developed an extraordinary interest in an obscure federal appointment.

They are quietly grooming Patrick J. Delaney for a $50,000-a-year post on the Susquehanna River Basin Commission. As preparation for this high calling, Delaney has been a law school dropout, stock salesman, race track official and Richard Nixon fundraiser, respectively.

There is a suspicion, however, that the Carter crowd is more fascinated with Delaneys connections than his resume. For he is the son of Rep. James J. Delaney, D-N.Y., the 76-year-old curmudgeon who heads the House Rules Committee. This committee determines what legislation will reach the House floor.

The White House is more concerned about the flow of legislation on Capitol Hill than the flow of the Susquehanna. And the 36-year-old Delaney might be able to influence the flow of the one if not the other.

His father, an old cahoot with an Iraish flair for politics, believes in family planning. It used to be that a congressman could install a deserving relative on the congressional payroll. But the publicity has sent most relatives scurrying for other jobs.

Congressman Delaney,not one to let go of a government pay envelope easily, reportedly pressured ex-President Gerald Ford to appoint young Patrick to the Securities and Exchange Commission. A Senate investigation indicated that the congressman's son, however, knew no more about highfinance than he does about water resources.

Sources familiar with the backroom politicking say that Delaney, the elder, tried valiantly to persuade senators to approve the nomination. But the outcry against Delaney, the younger, was so strong that President Carter withdrew the nomination not long after inheriting it from Ford.

The new president has become more impressed lately with Chairman Delaney's power over legislation. To placate the old man, Carter is now looking for a harmless spot for the jobless son. The Susquehanna River Basin seemed far enough away from Washington to satisfy the president's advisers.

Thereis one vexing problem. The commissioners are supposed to know something about water resources if not the Susquehanna itself. But apparently young Delaneys lack of qualifications is not regarded as an insurmountable obstacle by Hamilton Jordan, the presidents top political aide. Jordan's office is trying to secure the $50,000 plum for Delaney.

Commented one congressional aide when he heard the White House was pushing Delaney for the Susquehanna job: Boy, it sounds like they have finally found some place they can put him.

Footnote: Congressman Delaney denied he had contacted either the president or Jordan about finding employment for his son. Jordan and young Delaney did not return our repeated calls. But a presidential spokesman said defensively: There are people in the White House who think Delaney is qualified for the job.

POWER BROKERS— The energy crisis is developing a new breed of power brokers who speak the technical language and are at home in the policy councils where the multi-billion-dollar energy decisions are made.

Earlier this year, four energy hotshots descended from Capitol Hill and formed a potent new law firm: Van Ness, Curtis, Feldman and Sutcliffe.

William Van Ness had been chief counsel of the Senate Interior Committee, specializing in energy matters. Charles Curtis left the House Commerce Committee, where he was regarded as one of the foremost energy authorities on Capitol Hill. Howard Feldman, as chief counsel to the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, had investigated the big oil conglomerates. And S. Lynn Sutcliffe, a former counsel to the Senate Commerce Committee, is also an energy expert.

Now the four of them, once crusaders for the public interest, are representing the private interests they formerly criticized. They represent Pacific Gas and Electric Company, which wants to build a natural gas pipeline in Alaska. Another client, Tier Pipeline Company with financial ties to the giant Amoco, wants to build an oil pipeline to deliver oil from the West to the East coast.

The new law firm also impressed prospective clients with its connections by bringing Washington's top policymakers to a seminar to impart inside information. The firm charged businessmen $225 apiece to listen to the likes of Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary, former Administrator Frank Zarb, House Energy Chairman Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, and White Houe energy aides Alvin Alm and Leslie Goldman.

Now one of the law partners, after his brief romance with the private interests, reportedly has been tapped by President Carter to head the Federal Power Commission. Charles Curtis, having just passed through the revolving door from the public to the private sector, is about to return through the revolving door again.

In an interview with our associate Marc Smolonsky, Curtis acknowledged that the creation of the new law firm raised a natural question. The partners thought about the possible conflicts involved in switching from government to private practice, he said. But he insisted there were no conflicts. The firm would turn down clients with problems before the committees that the partners had worked for, he promised.

Curtis added that he didn't consider it realistic or reasonable to expect those who worked for the federal government to forfeit practicing their profession.

A New Elite:
Democratic National Committee boasts of its Whiz Kids, Youth Culture and No Aging

WASHINGTON— If you can't quite make it at badminton, body surfing, back-packing, rafting, motorbiking or skiing, you're just not in at the Democratic National Committee.

Actually the DNC has developed a youth cult elite and I might have passed it by if they hadn't been boasting over being the Potomac avant-garde with an average staff age of 25.

The former country music disc jockey, Charlotte Scot, the nice 30-year-old lady press secretary, let it be known that this has given contemporary politics in general and the DNC in particular a "face lift." Come on in and see, she suggested.

In all fairness, before I charge the imaginative female flak with bad taste, it must be noted that along with the physical virtues of the enfants terribles she was peddling, such as body surfing and back-packing, she listed one staffer who loves to cook and another who breeds Irish wolfhounds -- which is enough almost to forgive the gaucheness of her anti-senior citizen reach media space and time.

Bad taste are the words for this boasting of virtues of youth. It all seems to be so self-evident. But the political flak's redundancy is doubly abrasive. It comes right smack in the midst of the big congressional push for some recognition of the anguish of the aging, of the hurt and trauma of those forced to retire from industry at 65 and for compassion for older folks, about 22 million of them, who are our senior citizens.

The Democratic National Committee's invitation to come on in and look our youth over came on the eve of the Senate Human Resources Committee's subcommittee on labor hearings on five bills which would prevent discrimination against the older folks.

Now it's true that some of our old giants, living and departed may have brought all this on themselves. In 1960 Harry Truman, for example, told the 43-year-old Jack Kennedy, a Massachusetts Senator, he was too young to be President. So a few days later Kennedy planted a question among the newspeople, asking for reaction to this older elitisam. And then Jack gave out with, wasn't William Pitt prime minister of the British Empire at 24?

Yup. But Winston Churchill made it to 10 Downing St. at 66 first time and later at 77. And he won the Nobel prize for literature at 79. Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who loved to tower above me by half a length, became the powerful president of France at 69 and served until he was 79. Benjamin Disraeli became Queen Victoria's premier minister at 63 and then again at 70, serving until 76. And while not in the same league, the DNC should know Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, speaker of the House, will be 65 next December.

And always I recall that my late friend Konrad Adenauer, who rebuilt post-World War II Germany into a prosperous and democratic state, became chancellor at 73. He led the Federal Republic until he turned 87.

All of which brings me to the 82-year-old AFL-CIO chief George Meany, who will turn 83 Aug. 16 amid cheering crowds at a Hyatt Regency Hotel celebration that day. In 1971 Meany told Ted Kennedy, who was then 39, that the gentleman from Massachusetts was too young to run for President. Well, today many insiders are saying, but not to Meany's face, that he himself is too old to run for president of the massive labor movement at the AFL-CIO's national convention next December.

But if he feels as he does today (though last week he had a cold) Meany will run for another term -- which should carry him to the age of 85.

Let no one carp. Meany did serve notice when he returned from Adenauer's funeral back in 1967 that he planned to emulate the old chancellor, who died at 91.

And Meany's keeping his word. Only illness will prevent the old powerhouse from running in 1979 and onward.

I have some old press clips out of the morgue which show a series of my pundit-prone colleagues predicting Meany's last hurrah and power blackout. Aside from the fact that Meany has outlived many of his "successors," his political clout rarely has been greater. He has just forced President Carter to reverse himself on several issues -- and most important, on the backing of the "labor law reform" bill which will give the American labor movement heavy transfusions.

And when he and his political batman Al Barkan (who is in his 60s) get through trouncing the Democratic National Committee inside the party, the new elite, the new youth cult culture will know that speaking gruffly and smoking a big cigar and playing gin rummy can match back-packing and body surfing anytime when it comes to political in-fighting.

But actually there was a concession to seniority in the DNC's invitation to come on over. It was admitted that "the average age of a Department Divison head is 33" and that DNC chairman Ken Curtis is 46. But these signs of encroaching debility and the new wrinkles on Jimmy Carter's face don't ease my impression that reverse discrimination against the aging is akin to racial and religious bigotry.

RUSSIA LOOKS BACKWARD

..The Soviet Union's next constitution, which has been published in draft form and will be adopted this fall after controlled "debate," is a strangley old fashioned, even reactionary, document.

This is ironic for a society which claims to be "progessive," "advanced" and "scientific."

Its new constitution is in fact more backward than the one written by colonial farmers, merchants and lawyers in Philadelphia 190 years earlier.

The most striking difference between the two charters is their views of the individual.

The 18th-century Americans saw man as having natural rights that government could not abridge.

In modern Russia rights are granted by an all-powerful state which decides how - or if - they will be exercised.

A case in point is the 1936 "Stalin Constitution," which is being replaced.

It contained liberal promises of freedom of press, speech, assembly, religion and privacy.

In practice, however, it gave no protection to millions of innocent persons who were jailed or executed in the dictator's blood purges.

In recent years small numbers of dissidents have pointed to that constitution in calling for human rights denied to them.

They tried to defend themselves against criminal charges by insisting they were only asking for what was guaranteed to them by law.

General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, who expects the new document to make his mark in history, has moved to tighten the line against dissent.

After enumerating the people's rights, his constituition in effect takes them away by adding:

"Exercise by citizens of rights and freedoms must not injure the interest of society and the state..."

In translation this clearly means the people can do just what Big Brother says and no more.

Brezhnev's constitution also strengthens the dominant role of the Communist Party in Soviet life.

The party, it states, is "the ruling and directing power...of all the state and public organizations."

Of course, this has been the state of affairs since the 1917 revolution, but previous constituitions were not so frank about a ruling class in what was supposed to be Marx's classless society.

Minority rule, it turns out, is a problem not only in southern Africa.

What is also notable is the constitution's absence of checks and balances.

It is handed down by the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament run by the party, which also passes any party-desired enabling laws.

There is no judicial review or possibility of appeal.

Moscow's propaganda machine would not agree, of course, but a comparison of the new constitution with America's "bourgeois" document of 1787 would be unfavorable to the former.

By including strong checks and balances the American framers protected the individual from arbitrary government.

By negating its paper promises of rights, the Brezhnev charter protects a ruling elite against its subjects.

Some progress.

When he has no freedom, how magnificent is liberty.

As a nation, whatever our shortcomings, we have strength and abundance, as a people much compassion, as a symbol and a world power much to offer everyone on earth who loves liberty.

As individuals we have opportunities, perhaps more than are to be found in any other nation, for self-realization.

In a world where freedom is often at bay, we have a mazimum of freedom. Let us pray we have the strength and wisdom to keep it and to make it grow.

If we lost what we now may take for granted, we would realize how valuable it is.

We do have reason for thanksgiving, don't we?

HEARTS ARE TRUMPS

Iggy, a retired furrier, attended Mass every morning. His zest for life made him look much younger than his almost 70 years. He loved to sing, and his rich tenor voice could be heard above all the others in church. But his enthusiasm was so catching that everyone else seemed to sing better when Iggy was there. He almost always had a corny joke to tell after church.

In the fall, Iggy's health began to fail. The doctors discovered he had terminal cancer. After that, Iggy spent most of his time in bed. I sent him cards and visited him when I could, and I always found him cheerful, hoping and praying to get back to church.

The Christmas season that year was a hectic time for me. Our daughter was being married the Saturday after Christmas Day. Absorbed in preparing for the two events, I didn't think much about Iggy. Then on Christmas Eve the phone rang.

As soon as I said hello, I heard the beautiful strains of The Bells of St. Mary's, sung by Iggy. It was one of his favorite songs, and I had never heard him sing better. When he finished he said, "Merry Christmas, bless your heart, and thank you for all your kindness to me."

Soon after, Iggy died. I will never forget him or his Christmas gift to me.

GETTING BACK TO "BASICS"

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that spanking or paddling unruly school students is constitutional, and that hereafter teachers who use that method of control need no longer fear reprisal suits from irate parents. That's getting back to basics.

What could be more basic than the seat of your pants?

Maybe schools can now get back to more basics:

RIGHTS FOR THE HANDICAPPED

The occupation of Health, Education and Welfare Department offices by handicapped demonstrators was an extreme yet understandable cry for redress of a notable grievance, both at the federal and the state level. There is no arguing with the contention of the disabled that they have gotten the runaround when it comes to enforcement of civil rights laws for their benefits. This is true not only of federal inattention, which has been bad enough, but is true of inattention in states such as Missouri, where lack of concern has bordered on blatant.

There was a touch of unfairness about the fact that the brunt of the demonstration in Washington fell upon an HEW secretary who has been in office for only a couple of months. Congress promised the handicapped equal rights in employment, health, education and social services more than three years ago, but the necessary regulations have been slow in coming, and Joseph A. Califano Jr. and his aids have inherited the problem.

Califano took somewhat testy note of this, but undertook to expedite his review of the complex regulations and sign an amended draft by next month. In our judgment, this is fair enough.

Saying this does not imply that the handicapped are overinsistent about their rights. On the contrary, they have the best of reasons to complain and have shown considerable restraint in their justified insistence that their special problems be alleviated by federal action.

The long delay in implementing congressional intent has been inconscionable. The demonstration in Califano's outer office and other HEW facilities is a timely reminder that the law should now be put into effect as rapidly as possible. Te Daily Dunklin Democrat Kennett, Mo

From The Chicago Tribune

An economist down at Florida State University reported the other day that it costs a middle-income family $64,000 to raise and educate a first child. Clearly, in these times of financial austerity and resource shortages, something just has to be done. Maybe a government policy or something.

At first we thought the policy ought to be aimed at redesigning the kids. Possibly developing a nofrills kid—one, say, without hair to be cut or teeth to be straightened.

But the more we thought about it the more we thought the problem might rest with the parents. For instance, our $64,000 model is perfectly willing to subsist on a diet of candy and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. This takes care of the teeth nicely and at the same time ensures layers of blubbery insulation that reduces the need for clothes. It's only our own fanciful and mostly futile insistence on a balanced diet that drives the food costs up.

And then there are the clothes themselves. What is needed here is an urgent declaration from the Government that kids should wear only blue jeans. It's a policy President Carter should find appealing, given his own disposition to wearing blue jeans around the White House. Of course, that's all our $64,000 model will wear anyway. Again, it's our own insistence on more—a diversified wardrobe—that drives up the family expenses.

Furnishings too seem to be more a question of parental tastes than kids' wants. Our $64,000 number has a decided preference for sleeping in a sleeping bag—either on the living room rug or in the back yard, depending upon the weather—rather than in the nifty bed from Denmark purchased for her room.

All and all, then, it seems the Florida prof has slightly misstated the issue. The $64,000 isn't so much what it costs to raise a kid properly as what it costs to buy parental confidence that the kid is being properly raised. An in that light, given the uncertainties inherent in parenthood, we got to thinking that $64,000 over 22 years is not that bad a deal.

ABOUT FACE

Ronald Reagan, former governor of California, tells how we could match Russia's record after its more than half century of socialism:

"We'd have to cut our paychecks back by more than 80 per cent; move 33 million workers back to the farm; destroy 59 million television sets; tear up 14 of every 15 miles of highway; junk 19 of every 20 automobiles; tear up two thirds of our railroad track; knock down 70 per cent of our houses and rip out nine out of every ten telephones. Then all we have to do is find a capitalist country to sell us wheat on credit to keep us from starving!"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

A POWERFUL CONGRESSMAN'S SON FINALLY GETS A GOVERNMENT JOB
By JACK ANDERSON and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The friendly folks who handle patronage at the White House have suddenly developed an extraordinary interest in an obscure federal appointment.

They are quietly grooming Patrick J. Delaney for a $50,000-a-year post on the Susquehanna River Basin Commission. As preparation for this high calling, Delaney has been a law school dropout, stock salesman, race track official and Richard Nixon fundraiser, respectively.

There is a suspicion, however, that the Carter crowd is more fascinated with Delaneys connections than his resume. For he is the son of Rep. James J. Delaney, D-N.Y., the 76-year-old curmudgeon who heads the House Rules Committee. This committee determines what legislation will reach the House floor.

The White House is more concerned about the flow of legislation on Capitol Hill than the flow of the Susquehanna. And the 36-year-old Delaney might be able to influence the flow of the one if not the other.

His father, an old cahoot with an Iraish flair for politics, believes in family planning. It used to be that a congressman could install a deserving relative on the congressional payroll. But the publicity has sent most relatives scurrying for other jobs.

Congressman Delaney,not one to let go of a government pay envelope easily, reportedly pressured ex-President Gerald Ford to appoint young Patrick to the Securities and Exchange Commission. A Senate investigation indicated that the congressman's son, however, knew no more about highfinance than he does about water resources.

Sources familiar with the backroom politicking say that Delaney, the elder, tried valiantly to persuade senators to approve the nomination. But the outcry against Delaney, the younger, was so strong that President Carter withdrew the nomination not long after inheriting it from Ford.

The new president has become more impressed lately with Chairman Delaney's power over legislation. To placate the old man, Carter is now looking for a harmless spot for the jobless son. The Susquehanna River Basin seemed far enough away from Washington to satisfy the president's advisers.

Thereis one vexing problem. The commissioners are supposed to know something about water resources if not the Susquehanna itself. But apparently young Delaneys lack of qualifications is not regarded as an insurmountable obstacle by Hamilton Jordan, the presidents top political aide. Jordan's office is trying to secure the $50,000 plum for Delaney.

Commented one congressional aide when he heard the White House was pushing Delaney for the Susquehanna job: Boy, it sounds like they have finally found some place they can put him.

Footnote: Congressman Delaney denied he had contacted either the president or Jordan about finding employment for his son. Jordan and young Delaney did not return our repeated calls. But a presidential spokesman said defensively: There are people in the White House who think Delaney is qualified for the job.

POWER BROKERS— The energy crisis is developing a new breed of power brokers who speak the technical language and are at home in the policy councils where the multi-billion-dollar energy decisions are made.

Earlier this year, four energy hotshots descended from Capitol Hill and formed a potent new law firm: Van Ness, Curtis, Feldman and Sutcliffe.

William Van Ness had been chief counsel of the Senate Interior Committee, specializing in energy matters. Charles Curtis left the House Commerce Committee, where he was regarded as one of the foremost energy authorities on Capitol Hill. Howard Feldman, as chief counsel to the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, had investigated the big oil conglomerates. And S. Lynn Sutcliffe, a former counsel to the Senate Commerce Committee, is also an energy expert.

Now the four of them, once crusaders for the public interest, are representing the private interests they formerly criticized. They represent Pacific Gas and Electric Company, which wants to build a natural gas pipeline in Alaska. Another client, Tier Pipeline Company with financial ties to the giant Amoco, wants to build an oil pipeline to deliver oil from the West to the East coast.

The new law firm also impressed prospective clients with its connections by bringing Washington's top policymakers to a seminar to impart inside information. The firm charged businessmen $225 apiece to listen to the likes of Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary, former Administrator Frank Zarb, House Energy Chairman Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, and White Houe energy aides Alvin Alm and Leslie Goldman.

Now one of the law partners, after his brief romance with the private interests, reportedly has been tapped by President Carter to head the Federal Power Commission. Charles Curtis, having just passed through the revolving door from the public to the private sector, is about to return through the revolving door again.

In an interview with our associate Marc Smolonsky, Curtis acknowledged that the creation of the new law firm raised a natural question. The partners thought about the possible conflicts involved in switching from government to private practice, he said. But he insisted there were no conflicts. The firm would turn down clients with problems before the committees that the partners had worked for, he promised.

Curtis added that he didn't consider it realistic or reasonable to expect those who worked for the federal government to forfeit practicing their profession.

A New Elite:
Democratic National Committee boasts of its Whiz Kids, Youth Culture and No Aging

WASHINGTON— If you can't quite make it at badminton, body surfing, back-packing, rafting, motorbiking or skiing, you're just not in at the Democratic National Committee.

Actually the DNC has developed a youth cult elite and I might have passed it by if they hadn't been boasting over being the Potomac avant-garde with an average staff age of 25.

The former country music disc jockey, Charlotte Scot, the nice 30-year-old lady press secretary, let it be known that this has given contemporary politics in general and the DNC in particular a "face lift." Come on in and see, she suggested.

In all fairness, before I charge the imaginative female flak with bad taste, it must be noted that along with the physical virtues of the enfants terribles she was peddling, such as body surfing and back-packing, she listed one staffer who loves to cook and another who breeds Irish wolfhounds -- which is enough almost to forgive the gaucheness of her anti-senior citizen reach media space and time.

Bad taste are the words for this boasting of virtues of youth. It all seems to be so self-evident. But the political flak's redundancy is doubly abrasive. It comes right smack in the midst of the big congressional push for some recognition of the anguish of the aging, of the hurt and trauma of those forced to retire from industry at 65 and for compassion for older folks, about 22 million of them, who are our senior citizens.

The Democratic National Committee's invitation to come on in and look our youth over came on the eve of the Senate Human Resources Committee's subcommittee on labor hearings on five bills which would prevent discrimination against the older folks.

Now it's true that some of our old giants, living and departed may have brought all this on themselves. In 1960 Harry Truman, for example, told the 43-year-old Jack Kennedy, a Massachusetts Senator, he was too young to be President. So a few days later Kennedy planted a question among the newspeople, asking for reaction to this older elitisam. And then Jack gave out with, wasn't William Pitt prime minister of the British Empire at 24?

Yup. But Winston Churchill made it to 10 Downing St. at 66 first time and later at 77. And he won the Nobel prize for literature at 79. Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who loved to tower above me by half a length, became the powerful president of France at 69 and served until he was 79. Benjamin Disraeli became Queen Victoria's premier minister at 63 and then again at 70, serving until 76. And while not in the same league, the DNC should know Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, speaker of the House, will be 65 next December.

And always I recall that my late friend Konrad Adenauer, who rebuilt post-World War II Germany into a prosperous and democratic state, became chancellor at 73. He led the Federal Republic until he turned 87.

All of which brings me to the 82-year-old AFL-CIO chief George Meany, who will turn 83 Aug. 16 amid cheering crowds at a Hyatt Regency Hotel celebration that day. In 1971 Meany told Ted Kennedy, who was then 39, that the gentleman from Massachusetts was too young to run for President. Well, today many insiders are saying, but not to Meany's face, that he himself is too old to run for president of the massive labor movement at the AFL-CIO's national convention next December.

But if he feels as he does today (though last week he had a cold) Meany will run for another term -- which should carry him to the age of 85.

Let no one carp. Meany did serve notice when he returned from Adenauer's funeral back in 1967 that he planned to emulate the old chancellor, who died at 91.

And Meany's keeping his word. Only illness will prevent the old powerhouse from running in 1979 and onward.

I have some old press clips out of the morgue which show a series of my pundit-prone colleagues predicting Meany's last hurrah and power blackout. Aside from the fact that Meany has outlived many of his "successors," his political clout rarely has been greater. He has just forced President Carter to reverse himself on several issues -- and most important, on the backing of the "labor law reform" bill which will give the American labor movement heavy transfusions.

And when he and his political batman Al Barkan (who is in his 60s) get through trouncing the Democratic National Committee inside the party, the new elite, the new youth cult culture will know that speaking gruffly and smoking a big cigar and playing gin rummy can match back-packing and body surfing anytime when it comes to political in-fighting.

But actually there was a concession to seniority in the DNC's invitation to come on over. It was admitted that "the average age of a Department Divison head is 33" and that DNC chairman Ken Curtis is 46. But these signs of encroaching debility and the new wrinkles on Jimmy Carter's face don't ease my impression that reverse discrimination against the aging is akin to racial and religious bigotry.

Zoos get smuggled animals

PH LADELPHIA (AP) — Eight of the nation's most prestigous zoos have been named as having received contraband reptiles from an internationalsmuggling ring.

A federal grand jury here on Thursday indicted 12 persons in a two and one-half year investigation that ranged from the United States to France, Switzerland, Africa and Australia.

Although no zoo officials were named in the indictments, an officials said the U.S. Interior Department would seek civil penalties against institutions and curators that received the rare snakes, lizards, crocodiles and other cold-blooded animals.

Arrest made in Manhattan bombing

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have arrested a suspected sympathizer of the Puerto Rican terrorist group that claims responsibility for bombings in mid+Manhattan that killed one person and injured seven others.

David Perez, 27, was booked on weapons charges after his Bronx apartment which police said was filled with guns, ammunition and radical literature was raided Thursday.

No charges were lodged against him in the bombings.

Syrians oppose U.S. meeting

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance took his peace mission to Jordan, but the U.S.-backed plan for a meeting of Middle East foreign ministers apparently has been shelved by Syrian opposition.

If Jordan agrees to it, the meeting still could be held, U.S. sources said, but it would have little impact without Syria. Egypt had suggested the idea, and it was endorsed by Vance and Israel.

President Hafez Assad rejected the proposal at a meeting with Vance Thursday. He said it was "better to concentrate at this stage" on preparations for Geneva peace talks.

Agreement reached over Mexican gas

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government and a consortium of six U.S. pipeline companies reached preliminary agreement on the building of a pipeline that within three years would carry almost $2 billion worth of Mexican natural gas annually to the United States.

The plan would benefit both countries, easing U.S. winter energy shortages and helping the Mexican government pay off its $20.3 billion foreign debt.

Carter signs $1 billion job program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1 billion program to help 200,000 young Americans find jobs is being signed by President Carter.

The program includes park and forestry jobs like those in the Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps and is part of the President's economic stimulus plan.

Carter planned to sign the legislation before meeting with President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania today for the third time in two days. The two leaders were expected to discuss efforts to improve relations between the United States and Tanzania.

Later today, Carter planned to fly home to Plains, Ga., with his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy.

FDA cites exploitation by Laetrile

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its strongest statement yet on controversial Laetrile, the Food and Drug Administration says cancer victims are "exploited skillfully" by Laetrile's promoters because they are emotionally vulnerable to hucksters.

The FDA filed a 268-page report with a federal judge in Oklahoma claiming that a review of the evidence did not sway their view that Laetrile, which some persons use to treat cancer, is a fraud.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy says in the report that Laetrile promoters play upon a cancer victim's frustration over the lack of a legitimate cure and build up the victim's fear of proven cancer therapies.

House votes on energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is scheduled to vote today on the remaining portions of President Carter's national energy plan.

The main votes remaining are on an attempt by Republicans to substitute their own program for the President's. The Republican plan basically calls for less regulation of the oil industry, which supporters say would prevent the kind of fuel shortages much of the nation experienced last winter.

House leaders are hoping that action on the legislation can be finished today, enabling Congress to begin its month-long recess.

So far, most of Carter's program has emerged intact, except for the issue of a higher gasoline tax, which the House rejected overwhelmingly.

Unemployment rate falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.9 per cent in July, resuming its downward course after rising the previous month, the government reported today.

Unemployment had risen from 6.9 per cent in May to 7.1 per cent in June after declining from a 1976 high of 8 per cent last November.

Labor Department analysists said that with the rate hovering close to the 7 per cent level for the past several months, the growth in the economy appears to have slowed temporarily following the sharp expansion earlier this year.

Some economists were expecting another rise in the jobless rate last month, but a sharp decline in the civilian labor fosce brought the rate down in July.

Automakers await bill signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto industry is awaiting President Carter's signature on legislation automakers say is necessary to begin building 1978-model cars.

Congress took final action Thursday night on a bill giving Detroit a new delay in meeting tough new auto exhaust standards. It is the fourth such postponement automakers have received.

President Carter, who urged Congress to enact the extension, is expected to sign the bill.

A compromise worked out earlier this week in a HouseSenate conference committee was adopted by voice votes in both chambers Thursday and sent to the President's desk.

Arrest made in Manhattan bombing

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have arrested a suspected sympathizer of the Puerto Rican terrorist group that claims responsibility for bombings in mid+Manhattan that killed one person and injured seven others.

David Perez, 27, was booked on weapons charges after his Bronx apartment which police said was filled with guns, ammunition and radical literature was raided Thursday.

No charges were lodged against him in the bombings.

FALN is a Spanish acronymn for Armed Forces of National Liberation of Puerto Rico, the name used by the terrorist group that seeks independence for the island. ,

Syrians oppose U.S. meeting

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance took his peace mission to Jordan, but the U.S.-backed plan for a meeting of Middle East foreign ministers apparently has been shelved by Syrian opposition.

If Jordan agrees to it, the meeting still could be held, U.S. sources said, but it would have little impact without Syria. Egypt had suggested the idea, and it was endorsed by Vance and Israel.

President Hafez Assad rejected the proposal at a meeting with Vance Thursday. He said it was "better to concentrate at this stage" on preparations for Geneva peace talks.

Agreement reached over Mexican gas

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government and a consortium of six U.S. pipeline companies reached preliminary agreement on the building of a pipeline that within three years would carry almost $2 billion worth of Mexican natural gas annually to the United States.

The plan would benefit both countries, easing U.S. winter energy shortages and helping the Mexican government pay off its $20.3 billion foreign debt.

Carter signs $1 billion job program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1 billion program to help 200,000 young Americans find jobs is being signed by President Carter.

The program includes park and forestry jobs like those in the Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps and is part of the President's economic stimulus plan.

Carter planned to sign the legislation before meeting with President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania today for the third time in two days. The two leaders were expected to discuss efforts to improve relations between the United States and Tanzania.

Later today, Carter planned to fly home to Plains, Ga., with his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy.

FDA cites exploitation by Laetrile

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its strongest statement yet on controversial Laetrile, the Food and Drug Administration says cancer victims are "exploited skillfully" by Laetrile's promoters because they are emotionally vulnerable to hucksters.

The FDA filed a 268-page report with a federal judge in Oklahoma claiming that a review of the evidence did not sway their view that Laetrile, which some persons use to treat cancer, is a fraud.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy says in the report that Laetrile promoters play upon a cancer victim's frustration over the lack of a legitimate cure and build up the victim's fear of proven cancer therapies.

House votes on energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is scheduled to vote today on the remaining portions of President Carter's national energy plan.

The main votes remaining are on an attempt by Republicans to substitute their own program for the President's. The Republican plan basically calls for less regulation of the oil industry, which supporters say would prevent the kind of fuel shortages much of the nation experienced last winter.

House leaders are hoping that action on the legislation can be finished today, enabling Congress to begin its month-long recess.

So far, most of Carter's program has emerged intact, except for the issue of a higher gasoline tax, which the House rejected overwhelmingly.

Unemployment rate falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.9 per cent in July, resuming its downward course after rising the previous month, the government reported today.

Unemployment had risen from 6.9 per cent in May to 7.1 per cent in June after declining from a 1976 high of 8 per cent last November.

Labor Department analysists said that with the rate hovering close to the 7 per cent level for the past several months, the growth in the economy appears to have slowed temporarily following the sharp expansion earlier this year.

Some economists were expecting another rise in the jobless rate last month, but a sharp decline in the civilian labor force brought the rate down in July.

Automakers await bill signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto industry is awaiting President Carter's signature on legislation automakers say is necessary to begin building 1978-model cars.

Congress took final action Thursday night on a bill giving Detroit a new delay in meeting tough new auto exhaust standards. It is the fourth such postponement automakers have received.

President Carter, who urged Congress to enact the extension, is expected to sign the bill.

A compromise worked out earlier this week in a HouseSenate conference committee was adopted by voice votes in both chambers Thursday and sent to the President's desk.

Passport plans cut costs for frequent park users

BY LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of Americans visiting national parks and monuments this summer are carrying special passports to lower costs.

Entrance fees, ranging from 50 cents to $3, are charged at about 70 of the nearly 300 parks, monuments and recreation facilities operated by the federal government. Tourists in some places also face so-called "use" fees of from $1 to $4 for such things as parking, camping and boat launching.

To help families cut spending at those areas where fees are involved, the government offers Golden Age and Golden Eagle Passports.

Golden Age Passports, free for people 62 and over, cover all admissions costs. Passport holders also get 50 per cent discounts on use fees. The passports do not cover fees charged by private concessionaires.

The Golden Age Passports are available at park service offices and at parks where entrance fees are charged. You cannot get the passport by mail, nor is it available at post offices. You must bring proof of age, such as a driver's license, or be prepared to sign an affidavit swearing that you are 62 or over. Note: Medicare cards are not accepted since in some cases they are issued to younger people.

The Golden Age passports are good for a lifetime; you do not have to get a new one each year. The National Park Service has sent 35,000 of them to its outlets for distribution this year.

The Golden Eagle Passport costs $10 and is designed for people who plan to visit several parks or other federally operated facilities in a single year. It covers all admission charges, but unlike the Golden Age Passport, it does not apply to use fees and is good only during the calendar year in which it is issued.

The Golden Eagle Passport may be purchased in person or by mail at the National Park Service headquarters, Department of the Interior, Washington, 20240; at regional offices; and at facilities where entrance fees are charged. The National Park Service has sent out 85,000 Golden Eagle Passports for distribution this year.

Both the Golden Age and Golden Eagle Passports cover admission fees for the permit holder and any persons accompanying him or her in a private vehicle. Where entry is not by vehicle, the passport covers the permit holder and members of his or her immediate family.

The park service said there had been 80.5 million visits to its facilities in the first five months of 1977. The number of visits for the whole year — including the June through Labor Day peak season — is expected to total 280 million, up from 267.8 million last year.

(The service measures visits rather than people since it has no way of telling if one person stops at the same place more than once or tours more than one facility.)

Many of the better known parks are expected to be even more crowded than they were during 1976 — the bicentennial year — and only four national parks accept reservations for campsites. To avoid disappointment, you should plan to arrive at any camping area early in the day.

You also can increase your chances of finding a place by considering one of the lesser-used parks. Park Service spokesman Duncan Morrow stresses that many of them are just as beautiful as the well-publicized places such as Yellowstone, Yosemite, the Grand Canyon and Great Smoky Mountains which already are "about to their limit."

The National Park Service offers a guide to 132 areas likely to be uncrowded. It includes information on the location of each area, along with services offered. The booklet, "Visit a Lesser-Used Park," costs 70 cents. It is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Ask for publication 112E.

If you are planning to camp in some of the wilderness, back-country areas, you may need a special permit to use certain trails or sections. The permits are available at the parks, but it's a good idea to check ahead, particularly this year since the drought has forced restrictions on camping in some places. Three parks — Carlsbad and Bandelier in New Mexico and Guadeloupe in Texas — have closed back-country sections completely.

Earthlings to view meteor shower

NEW YORK (AP) — The planet Earth, on its journey around the sun, is plowing through a swarm of gravel and other space junk left behind by a comet. The result is about to be seen by earthlings everywhere.

The phenomenon is called a meteor shower, but some will see UFOs.

Romantics will see "shooting stars" in one of the most beautiful light shows nature has to offer.

Astronomers and physicists will observe the ice, gravel and dust that burn before they can touch the planet.

"It's just like Old Faithful," says Dr. Kenneth Franklin, astronomer of the Hayden Planeterium here.

The rain of fiery debris — known as the Perseid Meteor Shower — becomes most visible the same time each year, from after midnight until just before dawn on August 11, 12 and 13.

It is called Perseid because the meteors, about 50 every hour, seem to be streaming from the constellation Perseus. The space debris rides along the orbit of the Temple-Swift Comet, which last passed the Earth in 1967.

The comet headed around the sun and then back into the far reaches of our solar system. If it returns at all, Temple-Swift won't be back until 2072.

"It's a fairly defunct comet," says Franklin. "It might never return."

But in previous trips around the sun, Temple-Swift left chunks of ice and gravel in its orbital path, which crosses the orbit of the Earth. Other comets have done the same thing, creating several meteor showers each year. Some are remembered for their irregular but spectacular shows of light. Others, like the Perseid, are known more for their regularity.

Franklin says observatories and planeteriums frequently receive calls about UFOs directly after meteor showers.

Passport plans cut costs for frequent park users

BY LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of Americans visiting national parks and monuments this summer are carrying special passports to lower costs.

Entrance fees, ranging from 50 cents to $3, are charged at about 70 of the nearly 300 parks, monuments and recreation facilities operated by the federal government. Tourists in some places also face so-called "use" fees of from $1 to $4 for such things as parking, camping and boat launching.

To help families cut spending at those areas where fees are involved, the government offers Golden Age and Golden Eagle Passports.

Golden Age Passports, free for people 62 and over, cover all admissions costs. Passport holders also get 50 per cent discounts on use fees. The passports do not cover fees charged by private concessionaires.

The Golden Age Passports are available at park service offices and at parks where entrance fees are charged. You cannot get the passport by mail, nor is it available at post offices. You must bring proof of age, such as a driver's license, or be prepared to sign an affidavit swearing that you are 62 or over. Note: Medicare cards are not accepted since in some cases they are issued to younger people.

The Golden Age passports are good for a lifetime; you do not have to get a new one each year. The National Park Service has sent 35,000 of them to its outlets for distribution this year.

The Golden Eagle Passport costs $10 and is designed for people who plan to visit several parks or other federally operated facilities in a single year. It covers all admission charges, but unlike the Golden Age Passport, it does not apply to use fees and is good only during the calendar year in which it is issued.

The Golden Eagle Passport may be purchased in person or by mail at the National Park Service headquarters, Department of the Interior, Washington, 20240; at regional offices; and at facilities where entrance fees are charged. The National Park Service has sent out 85,000 Golden Eagle Passports for distribution this year.

Both the Golden Age and Golden Eagle Passports cover admission fees for the permit holder and any persons accompanying him or her in a private vehicle. Where entry is not by vehicle, the passport covers the permit holder and members of his or her immediate family.

The park service said there had been 80.5 million visits to its facilities in the first five months of 1977. The number of visits for the whole year — including the June through Labor Day peak season — is expected to total 280 million, up from 267.8 million last year.

(The service measures visits rather than people since it has no way of telling if one person stops at the same place more than once or tours more than one facility.)

Many of the better known parks are expected to be even more crowded than they were during 1976 — the bicentennial year — and only four national parks accept reservations for campsites. To avoid disappointment, you should plan to arrive at any camping area early in the day.

You also can increase your chances of finding a place by considering one of the lesser-used parks. Park Service spokesman Duncan Morrow stresses that many of them are just as beautiful as the well-publicized places such as Yellowstone, Yosemite, the Grand Canyon and Great Smoky Mountains which already are "about to their limit."

The National Park Service offers a guide to 132 areas likely to be uncrowded. It includes information on the location of each area, along with services offered. The booklet, "Visit a Lesser-Used Park," costs 70 cents. It is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Ask for publication 112E.

If you are planning to camp in some of the wilderness, back-country areas, you may need a special permit to use certain trails or sections. The permits are available at the parks, but it's a good idea to check ahead, particularly this year since the drought has forced restrictions on camping in some places. Three parks — Carlsbad and Bandelier in New Mexico and Guadeloupe in Texas — have closed back-country sections completely.

Rungan names Jacobs to ag position

JEFFERSON CITY

Director Jack Runyan, Missouri Department of Agriculture, recently named Gary Jacobs to the position of Grain Marketing Specialist. Jacobs began working in the Department in July.

Before accepting the position, Jacobs managed his family farm in Pike County near Eolia, Missouri for two years. He has also been employed by the federal government as a cartographer and has taught high school math.

His duties as grain marketing specialist include gathering and organizing grain price information from different parts of the state.

Jacobs, his wife Ruth, and their 13-month-old son moved to Jefferson City from Webster Groves, where he was active in the St. Louis County Softball Association, the Salvation Army, and the YMCA. He holds a B.A. degree in Mathematics from Central Methodist College in Fayette, Mo.

Small business rejects Carter proposal for standby gasoline tax

A large majority of the nation's small business people do not like President Carter's proposal for a "standby" gasoline tax, according to a nationwide poll conducted recently by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB).

Through its official publication, Mandate, NFIB polls its 515,000 members every eight weeks on issues of interest to small business. More than 87,000 small businessmen and businesswomen responded to the most recent Mandate poll. Seventy-eight per cent said they opposed the "standby" tax, with 17 per cent favoring it, and five per cent indecided.

In the State of Missouri, the results were 80 per cent opposed, 16 per cent in favor and 4 per cent undecided.

The Carter proposal would add a five cents per gallon tax to the cost of gasoline each year that gasoline use rose above a certain federally-designated level. If gasoline use stayed under the designated level for any year, the tax would drop five cents a gallon.

NFIB members also expressed their opposition to the Department of Transportation's proposal to convert all road signs to metric units by 1982. The vote on that issue was 75 per cent opposed, 19 per cent in favor, and six per cent undecided.

On three other issues, the respondents were fairly evenly divided. Asked whether they felt that highway construction money should be withheld from states that do not enforce the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, 48 per cent said they were opposed, 48 per cent were in favor, and four per cent were undecided.

Fifty per cent of those responding said they were opposed to forcing manufacturers of large appliances such as freezers and air conditioners to meet federal standards for efficient energy use. Forty-six per cent said they were in favor, and four per cent were undecided.

To protect the nation against another Middle East oil embargo, the federal government has set aside a five months' supply of oil, known as a "Strategis Reserve". President Carter proposes expanding the "Strategic Reserve" to a 10-months' supply. Forty-eight per cent of NFIB members said they were opposed to the idea, 43 per cent were in favor, and nine per cent were undecided.

Cotton Council offers testimony on standards

MEMPHIS – The National Cotton Council has urged the Consumer Product Safety Commission to maintan, eliminate, or make voluntary its children's sleepwear flammability standards, rather than modify them.

In a letter to chairman S. John Byington, the Council said the cotton industry believes the CPSC may soon consider changes in the standards that would permit untreated man-made fibers to be used and thereby offer less protection to consumers.

Modifications in the standards are believed to be planned as a result of the banning of Tris as a flame retardant for polyester fabrics. Tris has been indicted as a cancer-causing treatment.

Today's flame-retardant cotton fabrics used in children's sleepwear are "fully capable of complying" with the CPSC flammability standards, the Council told the Commission chairman, and use finishing chemicals that do not cause cancer.

In a statement submitted earlier to an Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the Council said cotton FR treatments have been "erroneously implicated as possible tumor promoting agents on the basis of monomers used in them."

"It is paradoxical," the Council said, the "that cotton FR treatments should tend to be associated with Tris when, in fact, the treated cotton fabrics are more like the inherent flame-retardant fibers than topically-treated synthetics."

Regarding monomer testing to determine the carcinogenicity hazard of FR products to consumers, the Council statement asserted that "the same reasoning applied to modacrylics, for instance, would disqualify them for use in apparel since some of the monomers used in the production of modacrylics (e.g., vinyl chloride and acrylonitrile) are known carcinogens."

Rungan names Jacobs to ag position

JEFFERSON CITY — Director Jack Runyan, Missouri Department of Agriculture, recently named Gary Jacobs to the position of Grain Marketing Specialist. Jacobs began working in the Department in July.

Before accepting the position, Jacobs managed his family farm in Pike County near Eolia, Missouri for two years. He has also been employed by the federal government as a cartographer and has taught high school math.

His duties as grain marketing specialist include gathering and organizing grain price information from different parts of the state.

Jacobs, his wife Ruth, and their 13-month-old son moved to Jefferson City from Webster Groves, where he was active in the St. Louis County Softball Association, the Salvation Army, and the YMCA. He holds a B.A. degree in Mathematics from Central Methodist College in Fayette, Mo.

Small business rejects Carter proposal for standby gasoline tax

A large majority of the nation's small business people do not like President Carter's proposal for a "standby" gasoline tax, according to a nationwide poll conducted recently by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB).

Through its official publication, Mandate, NFIB polls its 515,000 members every eight weeks on issues of interest to small business. More than 87,000 small businessmen and businesswomen responded to the most recent Mandate poll. Seventy-eight per cent said they opposed the "standby" tax, with 17 per cent favoring it, and five per cent indecided.

In the State of Missouri, the results were 80 per cent opposed, 16 per cent in favor and 4 per cent undecided.

The Carter proposal would add a five cents per gallon tax to the cost of gasoline each year that gasoline use rose above a certain federally-designated level. If gasloine use stayed under the designated level for any year, the tax would drop five cents a gallon.

NFIB members also expressed their opposition to the Department of Transportation's proposal to convert all road signs to metric units by 1982. The vote on that issue was 75 per cent opposed, 19 per cent in favor, and six per cent undecided.

On three other issues, the respondents were fairly evenly divided. Asked whether they felt that highway construction money should be withheld from states that do not enforce the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, 48 per cent said they were opposed, 48 per cent were in favor, and four per cent were undecided.

Fifty per cent of those responding said they were opposed to forcing manufacturers of large appliances such as freezers and air conditioners to meet federal standards for efficient energy use. Forty-six per cent said they were in favor, and four per cent were undecided.

To protect the nation against another Middle East oil embargo, the federal government has set aside a five months' supply of oil, known as a "Strategis Reserve". President Carter proposes expanding the "Strategic Reserve" to a 10-months' supply. Forty-eight per cent of NFIB members said they were opposed to the idea, 43 per cent were in favor, and nine per cent were undecided.

Cotton Council offers testimony on standards

MEMPHIS — The National Cotton Council has urged the Consumer Product Safety Commission to maintan, eliminate, or make voluntary its children's sleepwear flammability standards, rather than modify them.

In a letter to chairman S. John Byington, the Council said the cotton industry believes the CPSC may soon consider changes in the standards that would permit untreated man-made fibers to be used and thereby offer less protection to consumers.

Modifications in the standards are believed to be planned as a result of the banning of Tris as a flame retardant for polyester fabrics. Tris has been indicted as a cancer-causing treatment.

Today's flame-retardant cotton fabrics used in children's sleepwear are "fully capable of complying" with the CPSC flammability standards, the Council told the Commission chairman, and use finishing chemicals that do not cause cancer.

In a statement submitted earlier to an Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the Council said cotton FR treatments have been "erroneously implicated as possible tumor promoting agents on the basis of monomers used in them."

"It is paradoxical," the Council said, the "that cotton FR treatments should tend to be associated with Tris when, in fact, the treated cotton fabrics are more like the inherent flame-retardant fibers than topically-treated synthetics."

Regarding monomer testing to determine the carcinogenicity hazard of FR products to consumers, the Council statement asserted that "the same reasoning applied to modacrylics, for instance, would disqualify them for use in apparel since some of the monomers used in the production of modacrylics (e.g., vinyl chloride and acrylonitrile) are known carcinogens."

No abortion funds to be paid unless mother's life in peril

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, which has helped pay for more than one million abortions for poor women in recent years, is finished paying unless a woman's life is endangered by her pregnancy.

While arguments continue in court and Congress remains deadlocked on the abortion issue, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. ordered enforcement Thursday of a year-old legal provision that was prevented from taking effect for months by a court challenge.

The provision was enacted last year to bar the use of federal money for any abortion "except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

But it wasn't put into effect because U.S. District Court Judge John F. Dooling Jr. in Brooklyn declared it unconstitutional.

On Thursday, at the instruction of the Supreme Court, Dooling lifted his order.

Less than an hour later, Califano, who personally opposes abortion, made this announcement:

"The department will provide federal financial participation in the cost of abortions only where the attending physician, on the basis of his or her professional judgment, has certified that the abortion is necessary because the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

Califano said victims of rape or incest who receive pregnancy-preventing treatment before they know whether they are pregnant will not be affected by the announcement. Nor will the government stop financing treatment for ectopic pregnancies, in which the fertilized egg develops outside the uterus and cannot grow to term, he said.

At wit's end

She survived the two's

By Erma Bombeck

I have written two books, play a ukelele and can drive a car without looking at my feet, but do you know what singular thing impresses women when I am in a group? The fact that I have survived a two-year old.

In all modesty, I must admit I am not the only woman in North America to endure the terrible 2s, but I am possibly on of the few who can talk about it without knotting my handkerchief.

One of the reasons I think I was so successful is that I adjusted earlier than most women. My kids were born being two years old. They seemed to have a full set of teeth for biting, an emergency supply of saliva for spitting and little legs that ran the mile under three minutes.

One evening, I said to my husband, "I cannot go on like this. I am exhausted."

He said, "You're just a little tired."

"When you fall asleep on an obscene phone call," I said, "you're exhausted."

"Do you mean to tell me a bald baby a yard high with a smile that could defrost Mount Everest is getting you down?"

"You don't understand," I said. "Between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., he put the cat in the dryer, got his arm caught in a rake, put his training pants in the oven, ate a guppy, pulled over the flour canister, sat on my geraniums, put his orthopedic shoes in the bathtub, dropped a television knob down the register, tore up my card for jury duty and talked 15 minutes without operator assistance to a housewife in New Mixico."

"Have you tried naps?" asked my husband.

"I've tried, but he keeps crawling in my playpen and slobbering, 'Mama, play..'"

Then, my husband remembered an old Burt Lancaster movie in which he was a prisoner of war. In order to maintain his sanity, he disciplined his mind to concentrate on things other than the pain he was enduring.

The next time my two-year-old oiled his tricycle with my $5.50 jar of ceam that was to bring everlasting youth to my chins, I smiled and recited the Declaration of Independence.

When I looked up from bridge one night and saw him sitting on the steps with nothing on except a 45 rpm phonograph record slung over one ear, I recited the alphabet backwards.

Come to think of it, I was the only woman on our block who could recite all the vice presidents from John Adams to Alben Barkley.

Food, fashion show planned

Food and fashion ideas will team up when Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and the Accent Shop present "A Taste of Fashion" Tuesday night at the Security Federal Savings and Loan building.

The women of the Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter have sponsored a tasting tea in four previous years. It was usually presented during the holiday season. This is the first time the tasting tea has been combined with another event.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, the food tasting will begin, with samples of hors d'oeuvres and desserts available. The recipes for the dishes can be purchased at the event.

At 8 p.m., the fashion show, featuring a variety of back-to-school, evening and sportswear styles, will begin.

Tickets for the tasting tea and fashion show are available from chapter members and at the Accent Shop. Some tickets will also be available at the door, but those wishing to attend are urged to buy tickets in advance.

Proceeds from the event will go to the various service projects Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter undertakes each year.

Sharrye Taylor, 301 Kennedy Drive, is ready for a night on the town in this three-piece paisley party pant ensemble by Coco. She will model in "A Taste of Fashion," a combination tasting tea and fashion show to be presented Tuesday night.

Beware, muggers

This lady's a champ

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Pamela Wansker is the kind of woman who could give a mugger nightmares. The attractive 23-year-old could not only defend herself but probably would leave the would-be attacker bruised and sorry.

The 5-foot-7, 135-pound former schoolteacher is a skilled practitioner of karate. "It's something you can get excited about getting good at," she said, and she's very good at it indeed. Several weeks ago, she placed first in her class in the Amateur Athletic Union National Karate Championships at Virginia Beach, Va.

Miss Wansker went to the tournament hoping merely to be allowed to compete, and found herself pitted against young women from across the country in the women's advanced black belt division of kumite — freestyle sparring. She won all four of her matches.

"Most of the others I was competing against were black belts (the highest distinction in karate)," she said. But both she and her final opponent in the championship match were only brown belts, "which shows you how much a black belt means."

Miss Wansker, an avid skier and swimmer who was captain of the women's tennis team at Bates College here, has been practicing karate for two years at the Golden Fist Karate School in Lewiston. Her instructor, John Jenkins, himself a black belt, said: "She's quite strong. She can throw someone 250 pounds over her back in a flip."

At the AAU tournament — she also won the Maine AAU women's championship last year — Miss Wansker relied on her favorite maneuver — a "reverse punch" in which she twists her opponent around and gives him or her a quick chop around the midsection.

Ann Landers

Throw him out, but how?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you told a woman to throw the bum out. Do you have any advice on how a 120-pound wife can throw out a 194-pound bum?

If I knew I'd have thrown mine out long ago. In Missouri there is NO law to help a wife throw the bum out. If you have a few guidelines, I'm sure thousands of women would be happy to have them.

+++Sign Me Living A Nightmare.

Dear Living : You've put your finger on one of the worst flaws in the divorce laws of most states. It's a crying shame that a woman has so much trouble throwing the bum out even though he's a liar, a loafer, a cheat, gets drunk and violent and rearranges her bridgework periodically ..

The wife has to call the police while he's hitting her (a neat trick) or enlist the help of the children or the neighbors. By the time the police show up, the skunk is acting like a pussycat. He says, "She's nuts," the police believe him and that's the end of it.

Then of course there are women who won't file charges because they have small children and are afraid they can't make it on their own.

I still say if a woman really wants to get out of a bad marriage she can find a way to do it. The same goes for a man. And these days HE can get the kids if his wife is a lousy mother -- and some of them are

Dear Ann: When I saw in your column the words to that old song, "Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?" it brought back some wonderful memories. Your Iowa version was different from the one we learned around Bucks County. Just for old time's sake will you print mine?

"If you pull it out like rubber will it snap right back and fight?

"Can't you see I'm going crazy -- won't someone set me right?

"Does the chewing gum lose its flavor on the bedpost overnight?" -- Different Version

Dear D.V.: You wouldn't believe the dozens of "different versions" that came in from all over the country.

Here's one from Memphis:

"If your wife's a restless sleeper will it cause a family fight?

"A wad of gum in golden curls is not a pretty sight."

"Buy another package, fella, please don't be so tight--"

"Cuz the chewing gum loses flavor on the bedpost overnight."

Dear Ann: Several of us women get together once a week to sew, knit, crochet, embroider, and just talk. We agreed to exchange gifts once a year, the ground rules being we draw names and no one can spend more than $2

Mrs. M came with a magnificient hand-knit sweater on which she had embroidered a design. It was gorgeous. Of course, the person who won it was thrilled.

The question: Did Mrs. M. adhere to the rules? She insists she spent only $2 for the yarn and thread.

--Split In Michigan

Dear Split: She must have had the yarn and thread on hand. At today's prices, she couldn't have bought the materials for $2. (Maybe she spent $2 for the needles?) Her gift was worth at least $40 -- but if she wanted to do all that work, I see no cause for criticism.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could hlep you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

DEAR POLLY — I recently read the idea of using wet cotton to soften a number of things. I want to tell the others that for years I have used a wet tea bag. I find it will soften most anything. Once I had some divinity fudge that was hard as a rock so I put a wet tea bag on a piece of waxed paper in the container with the fudge. I closed it tightly and forgot it for some time. When I checked the candy was almost liquid. Keep the tea bag wet. It works great with cookies. I am now trying the tea bag in a tea ball such as suggested for the cotton to see if it works as well. — MRS. N.J.P.

Back-to-School

Cheryl Hillis modeled this dress and coat at the Bank of Sikeston's Back-to-School Style Show Thursday night at the Ramada Inn. Her hooded dress of Quiana had elastic at the waist and sleeves and zipped up the front. The wool coat, also hooded, featured pile trim and had a three-way belt. The fashion show displayed an array of designs from casual to evening wear for all age groups.

No abortion funds to be paid unless mother's life in peril

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, which has helped pay for more than one million abortions for poor women in recent years, is finished paying unless a woman's life is endangered by her pregnancy.

While arguments continue in court and Congress remains deadlocked on the abortion issue, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. ordered enforcement Thursday of a year-old legal provision that was prevented from taking effect for months by a court challenge.

The provision was enacted last year to bar the use of federal money for any abortion "except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

But it wasn't put into effect because U.S. District Court Judge John F. Dooling Jr. in Brooklyn declared it unconstitutional.

On Thursday, at the instruction of the Supreme Court, Dooling lifted his order.

Less than an hour later, Califano, who personally opposes abortion, made this announcement:

"The department will provide federal financial participation in the cost of abortions only where the attending physician, on the basis of his or her professional judgment, has certified that the abortion is necessary because the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

Califano said victims of rape or incest who receive pregnancy-preventing treatment before they know whether they are pregnant will not be affected by the announcement. Nor will the government stop financing treatment for ectopic pregnancies, in which the fertilized egg develops outside the uterus and cannot grow to term, he said.

Food, fashion show planned

Food and fashion ideas will team up when Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and the Accent Shop present "A Taste of Fashion" Tuesday night at the Security Federal Savings and Loan building.

The women of the Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter have sponsored a tasting tea in four previous years. It was usually presented during the holiday season. This is the first time the tasting tea has been combined with another event.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, the food tasting will begin, with samples of hors d'oeuvres and desserts available. The recipes for the dishes can be purchased at the event.

At 8 p.m., the fashion show, featuring a variety of back-to-school, evening and sportswear styles, will begin.

Tickets for the tasting tea and fashion show are available from chapter members and at the Accent Shop. Some tickets will also be available at the door, but those wishing to attend are urged to buy tickets in advance.

Proceeds from the event will go to the various service projects Xi Zeta Alpha Chapter undertakes each year.

Sharrye Taylor, 301 Kennedy Drive, is ready for a night on the town in this three-piece paisley party pant ensemble by Coco. She will model in "A Taste of Fashion," a combination tasting tea and fashion show to be presented Tuesday night.

At wit's end

She survived the two's

By Erma Bombeck

I have written two books, play a ukelele and can drive a car without looking at my feet, but do you know what singular thing impresses women when I am in a group? The fact that I have survived a two-year old.

In all modesty, I must admit I am not the only woman in North America to endure the terrible 2s, but I am possibly on of the few who can talk about it without knotting my handkerchief.

One of the reasons I think I was so successful is that I adjusted earlier than most women. My kids were born being two years old. They seemed to have a full set of teeth for biting, an emergency supply of saliva for spitting and little legs that ran the mile under three minutes.

One evening, I said to my husband, "I cannot go on like this. I am exhausted."

He said, "You're just a little tired."

"When you fall asleep on an obscene phone call," I said, "you're exhausted."

"Do you mean to tell me a bald baby a yard high with a smile that could defrost Mount Everest is getting you down?"

"You don't understand," I said. "Between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., he put the cat in the dryer, got his arm caught in a rake, put his training pants in the oven, ate a guppy, pulled over the flour canister, sat on my geraniums, put his orthopedic shoes in the bathtub, dropped a television knob down the register, tore up my card for jury duty and talked 15 minutes without operator assistance to a housewife in New Mixico."

"Have you tried naps?" asked my husband.

"I've tried, but he keeps crawling in my playpen and slobbering, 'Mama, play..'"

Then, my husband remembered an old Burt Lancaster movie in which he was a prisoner of war. In order to maintain his sanity, he disciplined his mind to concentrate on things other than the pain he was enduring.

The next time my two-year-old oiled his tricycle with my $5.50 jar of ceam that was to bring everlasting youth to my chins, I smiled and recited the Declaration of Independence.

When I looked up from bridge one night and saw him sitting on the steps with nothing on except a 45 rpm phonograph record slung over one ear, I recited the alphabet backwards.

Come to think of it, I was the only woman on our block who could recite all the vice presidents from John Adams to Alben Barkley.

Beware, muggers

This lady's a champ

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Pamela Wansker is the kind of woman who could give a mugger nightmares. The attractive 23-year-old could not only defend herself but probably would leave the would-be attacker bruised and sorry.

The 5-foot-7, 135-pound former schoolteacher is a skilled practitioner of karate. "It's something you can get excited about getting good at," she said, and she's very good at it indeed. Several weeks ago, she placed first in her class in the Amateur Athletic Union National Karate Championships at Virginia Beach, Va.

Miss Wansker went to the tournament hoping merely to be allowed to compete, and found herself pitted against young women from across the country in the women's advanced black belt division of kumite — freestyle sparring. She won all four of her matches.

"Most of the others I was competing against were black belts (the highest distinction in karate)," she said. But both she and her final opponent in the championship match were only brown belts, "which shows you how much a black belt means."

Miss Wansker, an avid skier and swimmer who was captain of the women's tennis team at Bates College here, has been practicing karate for two years at the Golden Fist Karate School in Lewiston. Her instructor, John Jenkins, himself a black belt, said: "She's quite strong. She can throw someone 250 pounds over her back in a flip."

At the AAU tournament — she also won the Maine AAU women's championship last year — Miss Wansker relied on her favorite maneuver — a "reverse punch" in which she twists her opponent around and gives him or her a quick chop around the midsection.

Ann Landers

Throw him out, but how?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you told a woman to throw the bum out. Do you have any advice on how a 120-pound wife can throw out a 194-pound bum?

If I knew I'd have thrown mine out long ago. In Missouri there is NO law to help a wife throw the bum out. If you have a few guidelines, I'm sure thousands of women would be happy to have them.

+++Sign Me Living A Nightmare.

Dear Living: You've put your finger on one of the worst flaws in the divorce laws of most states. It's a crying shame that a woman has so much trouble throwing the bum out even though he's a liar, a loafer, a cheat, gets drunk and violent and rearranges her bridgework periodically ..

The wife has to call the police while he's hitting her (a neat trick) or enlist the help of the children or the neighbors. By the time the police show up, the skunk is acting like a pussycat. He says, "She's nuts," the police believe him and that's the end of it.

Then of course there are women who won't file charges because they have small children and are afraid they can't make it on their own.

I still say if a woman really wants to get out of a bad marriage she can find a way to do it. The same goes for a man. And these days HE can get the kids if his wife is a lousy mother -- and some of them are.

Dear Ann: When I saw in your column the words to that old song, "Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?" it brought back some wonderful memories. Your Iowa version was different from the one we learned around Bucks County. Just for old time's sake will you print mine?

"If you pull it out like rubber will it snap right back and fight?

"Can't you see I'm going crazy -- won't someone set me right?

"Does the chewing gum lose its flavor on the bedpost overnight?" -- Different Version

Dear D.V.: You wouldn't believe the dozens of "different versions" that came in from all over the country.

Here's one from Memphis:

"If your wife's a restless sleeper will it cause a family fight?

"A wad of gum in golden curls is not a pretty sight."

"Buy another package, fella, please don't be so tight--"

"Cuz the chewing gum loses flavor on the bedpost overnight."

Dear Ann: Several of us women get together once a week to sew, knit, crochet, embroider, and just talk. We agreed to exchange gifts once a year, the ground rules being we draw names and no one can spend more than $2.

Mrs. M came with a magnificient hand-knit sweater on which she had embroidered a design. It was gorgeous. Of course, the person who won it was thrilled.

The question: Did Mrs. M. adhere to the rules? She insists she spent only $2 for the yarn and thread.

--Split In Michigan

Dear Split: She must have had the yarn and thread on hand. At today's prices, she couldn't have bought the materials for $2. (Maybe she spent $2 for the needles?) Her gift was worth at least $40 -- but if she wanted to do all that work, I see no cause for criticism.

Sikeston wins pair at Regional

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard
Sports Editor

MOREHEAD, Minn. -- The Sikeston 13-year-old All-Stars are off and running in the Midwest Plains Regional Babe Ruth Tournament, and the Missouri State champions are giving at least some of the credit for their fast getaway to the folks back home who made their trip to Morehead, Minnesota a comfortable one.

The All-Stars blanked host Morehead 6-0 behind Steve Green's four-hit pitching in Thursday's 12:30 p.m. opener of the six-team event. They came back at 6:30 to stop Boone, Iowa 5'4 in the winner's bracker. Boone had drawn a first round bye.

Sikeston meets the tournament's only other undefeated team, Fargo, North Dakota, at 6:00 this evening. Fargo outslugged Edina, Minnesota 14-6 in the winner's bracket after drawing a first-round bye. A victory over Fargo would put Sikeston one victory away from the championship, with two chances to get it.

"The people in Sikeston were just great," said Jim Green, a Sikeston coach who was one of many who helped in raising the nearly $3,000 it took to fly the Sikeston entourage to Morehead.

A bus trip to the tournament would have taken two days and would have left the All-Stars in poor shape to play baseball. Since the cost difference between bus charter and commercial airline was less than $500, it was decided to make the trip by air. And the All-Stars, who arrived ready to play ball after the air junket from St. Louis to Morehead, are still flying high, although their plane landed Wednesday afternoon.

First-game jitters were certainly no problem for the Sikeston unit in the first game, although Morehead was overly generous with six errors.

Green, who was in trouble only once in the game on the mound, gave himself all the offensive support he would need in the first, driving in Bert Perry with a single to left. Perry had singled and gone to second on centerfielder Emerson's error.

After wasting a good scoring opportunity in the fourth, Sikeston scored three times in the fifth. Mike Hurley led off with a single, and Perry's grounder to third was booted by Emerson for an error. Green got his second RBI of the game with a single, and Garner legged out an infield hit, with Perry scoring on the play and Green going to third. Al Merrell lifted a sacrifice fly to make it 4-0.

In the sixth, Mike Lambert got on when Schultz dropped his fly to left. Hurley and Perry both walked to fill the sacks. Lambert rode home on a wild pitch by loser Rick, but Perry was trapped taking too wide turn at second. The Sikeston catcher, however, stayed in a rundown long enough to let Hurley sneak home from third with the final Sikeston run.

In the second game, Boone broke on top in the first on Murphy's leadoff double and an error by Tim Chasteen at shortstop. But a two-out rally aided by a pair of Boone errors let Sikeston go ahead in the bottom of the inning.

Green, who had three hits in the first game, banged out his first of two in the second game with a two-out single. Shortstop R. Martin made his first of three errors by booting Garner's grounder, and Merrell walked to load the bases. B. Martin, the Boone pitcher who was vitimized by the atrocious defense, still should have been out of the inning when Phillip Carnell lofted a high opp in front of the plate. But catcher Baldus dropped the ball , and with everybody running with two out, both Green and Garner were able to score.

Hurley suffered a streak of wildness in the second that gave Boone three more runs and a 4-2 lead. B. Martin singled with two out before Hurley walked R. Martin and Murphy to load the bases. Three straight wild pitchers gave Boone a trio of gift runs before Hurley finally got the last out.

Two more unearned runs off Martin tied the score in the bottom of the third for Sikeston. R. Martin booted Green's grounder for his second error, and after Garner singled and Merrell popped out, Martin struck again, failing to come up with Carnell's tap to short. Green scored on the play, and John Watkins singled to score Garner with the tying run.

Sikeston got the winning run in the bottom of the sixth when Watkins got his second hit. After Chasteen faned, Tim Lambert singled to left, and Watkins came home when McVicker let the ball get by him.

All five Sikeston runs off Martin were unearned as Boone dropped into the loser's bracket.

Nick Garner was expected to take the mound this evening for Sikeston against Fargo, North Dakota.

Jaycee football sign-up Aug. 13

Registration for the 1977 Sikeston Jaycee Little League Football program will be held Saturday morning, August 13 at the Sikeston Senior High School Cafeteria.

Sixth and seventh graders wishing to participate in the league should sign up at the high school between 9:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon. They should be prepared to pay an insurance fee of $7.50 per player, which is required before players can practice.

Athletes will be assigned to teams, and practice will begin the following Monday August 15.

Players who cannot attent the registration should call Steve Sikes at 471-5668, Mike Taylor at 471-5165 or Charles Blanton at 471-1137.

Hart to start at QB for Cardinals

ST. LOUIS— Veteran Jim Hart will be the starting quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals in their exhibition opener against the Atlanta Falcons Saturday night, with number one draft choice Steve Pisarkiewicz as the back-up man.

Cards coach Don Coryell, noting that Hart has been nursing a sore arm, said Pisarkiewicz will be used in relief, along with Bill Donckers and Mike Wells. "They've all thrown well in practice said Coryell.

St. Louis, which posted a 10-4 record but missed an NFL post-season playoff berth last year, will face a Falcon team which is rebuilding under new coach Leeman Bennett, a former Cardinal aide.

Coryell, who labeled the Big Red as "reasonably healthy", listed middle linebacker Tim Kearney as his team's only doubtful starter. Kearney has a pulled groin muscle.

Masterson leads SNB to title

Tom Masterson led the way as Security National Bank won the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League tournament. They defeated Purkey's Restaurant in fine fashion 10-0.

Purkey's got into the final round as they dwoned Eagles 6-4 in the 6:30 contest. Dale Lane led the hitting of Purkey's with a 3-for-3 outing, collecting three RBI'S. Bobby Bye and Lindsay Jackson also pitched in with inside the park homer runs. Bob Stinnett was the winner in this game with John Chessor taking the loss for Eagles.

Stinnett was forced to come right back and pitch another game which was won by Masterson and Company. Masterson was the winning pitcher as he hurled a two-hit gem while allowing no walks. Masterson also displayed his hitting ability as he went 3-for-4 with a triple and homer. In all, he drove in six of Security's ten runs. Mike Collier did well also as he banged out three hits in as many trips. Stinnett was the loser of the championship contest with Tom Masterson collecting the big win.

Royals hope to sweep Chisox

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City's two-game sweep of Toronto not only kept the Royals in the thick of their division race, it also got the hitters and pitchers talking to each other again.

And they are talking about the Chicago White Sox, who open a crucial three-game series here tonight.

"We'll take 'em one at a time," Larry Gura said after hurling a nine-hit, 8-0 shutout at the Blue Jays Thursday night. "But we all know we need a sweep."

A sweep of the hot-hitting Sox, who whipped the Royals three out of four in Comiskey Park last weekend, would put Kansas City 1½ games behind Chicago in the tight American League West chase.

The Royals staggered home this week from a 1-5 trip in which they also dropped two games to the second-place Minnesota Twins. Every loss was the result of an opposing team's rally. The Royals hitters poured across 33 runs in the six games, but watched their pitchers give up 45.

To a man, the Royals feel they should have won at least three in Chicago.

"The hitters were pretty disgusted," said Fred Patek, who drove in four runs Thursday night with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

"We should have beat Chicago four straight and won at least one of the Minnesota games. We'd go out and score two or three runs and get ahead, then the pitchers would let them score three or four and we'd say, 'Well, we got to go out and do it again.' We'd do it again, and then fall behind again.

"Nobody was getting on the pitchers. They're grown men. They know what they're doing. We just weren't saying anything to them."

Second baseman Frank White, who left the game Thursday night with a slight hamstring pull after doubling and scoring, is hoping to hold the Sox to four runs a game.

"If we can do that, we can sweep 'em," he said. "Whoever gets the best pitching will win. We know our hitters can hit their pitchers."

George Brett, whose bat is smoking, smacked four hits Thursday night, the fifth game since July 27 in which he has collected three or more.

"If we had lost these two to Toronto, this team would have been at an all-time low," he said. "We were close to that when we left Chicago. Sure, we should have beat the White Sox all four up there.

"But now it's put up time. We've got one more shot at the White Sox. But even if we sweep them, we'll still have to beat Minnesota and Texas. There are four teams in our division playing well now. What we've got to do is win every game we possibly can."

Customs officers in Baltimore, Maryland, discovered 8 pounds of black pepper corn secreted in the body of a 1976 pickup truck. Not only did they take the $133 worth of pepper corn away from the smuggler, they also seized his $3,300 truck.

MOREHEAD, Minn. -- The Sikeston 13-year-old All-Stars are off and running in the Midwest Plains Regional Babe Ruth Tournament, and the Missouri State champions are giving at least some of the credit for their fast getaway to the folks back home who made their trip to Morehead, Minnesota a comfortable one.

The All-Stars blanked host Morehead 6-0 behind Steve Green's four-hit pitching in Thursday's 12:30 p.m. opener of the six-team event. They came back at 6:30 to stop Boone, Iowa 5'4 in the winner's bracker. Boone had drawn a first round bye.

Sikeston meets the tournament's only other undefeated team, Fargo, North Dakota, at 6:00 this evening. Fargo outslugged Edina, Minnesota 14-6 in the winner's bracket after drawing a first-round bye. A victory over Fargo would put Sikeston one victory away from the championship, with two chances to get it.

"The people in Sikeston were just great," said Jim Green, a Sikeston coach who was one of many who helped in raising the nearly $3,000 it took to fly the Sikeston entourage to Morehead.

A bus trip to the tournament would have taken two days and would have left the All-Stars in poor shape to play baseball. Since the cost difference between bus charter and commercial airline was less than $500, it was decided to make the trip by air. And the All-Stars, who arrived ready to play ball after the air junket from St. Louis to Morehead, are still flying high, although their plane landed Wednesday afternoon.

First-game jitters were certainly no problem for the Sikeston unit in the first game, although Morehead was overly generous with six errors.

Green, who was in trouble only once in the game on the mound, gave himself all the offensive support he would need in the first, driving in Bert Perry with a single to left. Perry had singled and gone to second on centerfielder Emerson's error.

After wasting a good scoring opportunity in the fourth, Sikeston scored three times in the fifth. Mike Hurley led off with a single, and Perry's grounder to third was booted by Emerson for an error. Green got his second RBI of the game with a single, and Garner legged out an infield hit, with Perry scoring on the play and Green going to third. Al Merrell lifted a sacrifice fly to make it 4-0.

In the sixth, Mike Lambert got on when Schultz dropped his fly to left. Hurley and Perry both walked to fill the sacks. Lambert rode home on a wild pitch by loser Rick, but Perry was trapped taking too wide turn at second. The Sikeston catcher, however, stayed in a rundown long enough to let Hurley sneak home from third with the final Sikeston run.

In the second game, Boone broke on top in the first on Murphy's leadoff double and an error by Tim Chasteen at shortstop. But a two-out rally aided by a pair of Boone errors let Sikeston go ahead in the bottom of the inning.

Green, who had three hits in the first game, banged out his first of two in the second game with a two-out single. Shortstop R. Martin made his first of three errors by booting Garner's grounder, and Merrell walked to load the bases. B. Martin, the Boone pitcher who was vitimized by the atrocious defense, still should have been out of the inning when Phillip Carnell lofted a high opp in front of the plate. But catcher Baldus dropped the ball , and with everybody running with two out, both Green and Garner were able to score.

Hurley suffered a streak of wildness in the second that gave Boone three more runs and a 4-2 lead. B. Martin singled with two out before Hurley walked R. Martin and Murphy to load the bases. Three straight wild pitchers gave Boone a trio of gift runs before Hurley finally got the last out.

Two more unearned runs off Martin tied the score in the bottom of the third for Sikeston. R. Martin booted Green's grounder for his second error, and after Garner singled and Merrell popped out, Martin struck again, failing to come up with Carnell's tap to short. Green scored on the play, and John Watkins singled to score Garner with the tying run.

Sikeston got the winning run in the bottom of the sixth when Watkins got his second hit. After Chasteen faned, Tim Lambert singled to left, and Watkins came home when McVicker let the ball get by him.

All five Sikeston runs off Martin were unearned as Boone dropped into the loser's bracket.

Nick Garner was expected to take the mound this evening for Sikeston against Fargo, North Dakota.

Jaycee football sign-up Aug. 13

Registration for the 1977 Sikeston Jaycee Little League Football program will be held Saturday morning, August 13 at the Sikeston Senior High School Cafeteria.

Sixth and seventh graders wishing to participate in the league should sign up at the high school between 9:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon. They should be prepared to pay an insurance fee of $7.50 per player, which is required before players can practice.

Athletes will be assigned to teams, and practice will begin the following Monday August 15.

Players who cannot attent the registration should call Steve Sikes at 471-5668, Mike Taylor at 471-5165 or Charles Blanton at 471-1137.

Hart to start at QB for Cardinals

ST. LOUIS— Veteran Jim Hart will be the starting quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals in their exhibition opener against the Atlanta Falcons Saturday night, with number one draft choice Steve Pisarkiewicz as the back-up man.

Cards coach Don Coryell, noting that Hart has been nursing a sore arm, said Pisarkiewicz will be used in relief, along with Bill Donckers and Mike Wells. "They've all thrown well in practice said Coryell.

St. Louis, which posted a 10-4 record but missed an NFL post-season playoff berth last year, will face a Falcon team which is rebuilding under new coach Leeman Bennett, a former Cardinal aide.

Coryell, who labeled the Big Red as "reasonably healthy", listed middle linebacker Tim Kearney as his team's only doubtful starter. Kearney has a pulled groin muscle.

Masterson leads SNB to title

Tom Masterson led the way as Security National Bank won the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League tournament. They defeated Purkey's Restaurant in fine fashion 10-0.

Purkey's got into the final round as they dwoned Eagles 6-4 in the 6:30 contest. Dale Lane led the hitting of Purkey's with a 3-for-3 outing, collecting three RBI'S. Bobby Bye and Lindsay Jackson also pitched in with inside the park homer runs. Bob Stinnett was the winner in this game with John Chessor taking the loss for Eagles.

Stinnett was forced to come right back and pitch another game which was won by Masterson and Company. Masterson was the winning pitcher as he hurled a two-hit gem while allowing no walks. Masterson also displayed his hitting ability as he went 3-for-4 with a triple and homer. In all, he drove in six of Security's ten runs. Mike Collier did well also as he banged out three hits in as many trips. Stinnett was the loser of the championship contest with Tom Masterson collecting the big win.

Royals hope to sweep Chisox

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City's two-game sweep of Toronto not only kept the Royals in the thick of their division race, it also got the hitters and pitchers talking to each other again.

And they are talking about the Chicago White Sox, who open a crucial three-game series here tonight.

"We'll take 'em one at a time," Larry Gura said after hurling a nine-hit, 8-0 shutout at the Blue Jays Thursday night. "But we all know we need a sweep."

A sweep of the hot-hitting Sox, who whipped the Royals three out of four in Comiskey Park last weekend, would put Kansas City 1½ games behind Chicago in the tight American League West chase.

The Royals staggered home this week from a 1-5 trip in which they also dropped two games to the second-place Minnesota Twins. Every loss was the result of an opposing team's rally. The Royals hitters poured across 33 runs in the six games, but watched their pitchers give up 45.

To a man, the Royals feel they should have won at least three in Chicago.

"The hitters were pretty disgusted," said Fred Patek, who drove in four runs Thursday night with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

"We should have beat Chicago four straight and won at least one of the Minnesota games. We'd go out and score two or three runs and get ahead, then the pitchers would let them score three or four and we'd say, 'Well, we got to go out and do it again.' We'd do it again, and then fall behind again.

"Nobody was getting on the pitchers. They're grown men. They know what they're doing. We just weren't saying anything to them."

Second baseman Frank White, who left the game Thursday night with a slight hamstring pull after doubling and scoring, is hoping to hold the Sox to four runs a game.

"If we can do that, we can sweep 'em," he said. "Whoever gets the best pitching will win. We know our hitters can hit their pitchers."

George Brett, whose bat is smoking, smacked four hits Thursday night, the fifth game since July 27 in which he has collected three or more.

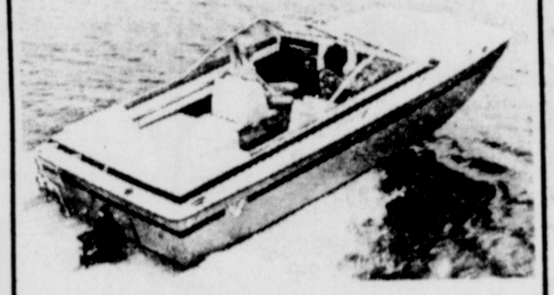

"If we had lost these two to Toronto, this team would have been at an all-time low," he said. "We were close to that when we left Chicago. Sure, we should have beat the White Sox all four up there.

"But now it's put up time. We've got one more shot at the White Sox. But even if we sweep them, we'll still have to beat Minnesota and Texas. There are four teams in our division playing well now. What we've got to do is win every game we possibly can."

Customs officers in Baltimore, Maryland, discovered 8 pounds of black pepper corn secreted in the body of a 1976 pickup truck. Not only did they take the $133 worth of pepper corn away from the smuggler, they also seized his $3,300 truck.

All-Stars, Cape in finals of Sikeston 11-12 tourney

Sikeston fans had a lot to cheer about last night in the 11-12 Year Old Sikeston Invitational Tournament. The Sikeston All-Stars tattooed the Dexter Nationals 14-4. The second game, which pitted the Sikeston Aces against Cape Girardeau, was likewise a crowd pleaser, until the sixth inning.

The Aces had come to play and after four innings they led the Cape All-Stars 6-2.Cape then came up with three runs in fifth to close the gap. A tiring but game Vince Howard continued to hurl for Sikeston and streaks of wildness hurt him badly. He walked three and hit one batter in that Cape fifth, but did manage to get out of the inning with a one run lead.

Sikeston failed to score in their half of the inning and a revived Cape team scored two unearned runs to take the lead. In their half of that final inning, trailing 7-6, the Aces got lead off hitter John Gilbow aboard with a walk. Robert Merrell then lines the ball to Cape's second baseman who flipped to first for the double play. Sikeston hopes seemed to collapse on the hard luck play and they lost the contest 7-6.

Robert Merrell and Mike Burnett shown as hitters for the Aces as Merrell banged out two doubles in three trips and Burnett was 2-for-3, both hard-hit triples. Vince Howard did a good job on the mound as he struck out twelve Cape baters but still grabbed the loss.

Pannier got the win for Cape as well as knocking the winning run home.

The All-Stars of Sikeston were not to be challenged as the Aces were. They had their hitting shoes on and teed off on the Dexter pitching. Sikeston was given only two free passes by the Dexter pitching, but they made up for that by ripping seventeen base hits, five of them triples. Three of those triples came back to back in the fifth inning with the Dexter outfielders wondering just how far back they wre going to have to play. Super-sub Chris Steward had two of those triples in only two plate appearances. Mike Moore and David Braden were both 3-for-4 for the All-Stars with Jimmy McPherson adding his 3-for-3 with a triple.

Not to be forgotten in this game was a solid pitching performance by Marland Beaudean, who allowed but two hits while striking out seven. Beaudean got the win for the All-Stars while a hard-pressed Bien of Dexter incurred the loss.

The Sikeston All-Stars now move into tonight's 8:00 championship game against Cape with the Sikeston Aces battling the Dexter Nationals in the 6:30 consolation game.

Charlie Company takes top honors at camp

MT. McCOY, Wis. — Company C, 1140th Combat Engineer Battalion, Missouri Army National Guard, based in Sikeston and Portageville, came away from the annual two-week training encampment with top honors in the state, according to company commander, Capt. Bill Wellborn.

"Charlie Company," Wellborn said, completed 61 of 65 assigned tasks successfully, for a 91 per cent success ratio, which was highest in the Battalion, and Charlie Company is now considered the best combat engineer unit in the Missouri Army National Guard."

The local soldiers also received the Kenneth Bodine Trophy for having the best combat entineer squad in the battalion.

The first week of training saw 105 men and officers of the Sikeston-Portageville unit working to polish their combat engineer skills in preparation for the four-day formal Army training test scheduled forthe second week.

The 5th Engineer Battalion (regular Army) from Ft. Leonard Wood was responsible for conducting the steets and evaluating the headquartes and line companies o the 1140th.

Day break on Monday of the second week signaled the beginning of the Army training test thatt the Sikeston Guardsmen had been preparing for over the last 12 months.

Squad leaders barked commands over the din of the diesel engines as the engineers loaded bedrolls, tents, and machine guns, in preparation for the 20-mile convoy move to the field. For the next four days the combat engineer squads would live out of their 5-ton dump trucks that carried a basic load of ammunition, rations, protective wire, pioneer kits, demolition kits, chain saws, and mine detectors - all basic tools for the combat engineer.

Before the convoy left the cantonment area, missions were crackling across the radios of command vehicles.

One such mission directed elements of "Charlie Company" to move out ahead of the convoy and secure a mountain pass critical to the movement of the remainder of the battalion motor convoy. Such missions tested the unit's ability to shoot, move and communicate.

Upon arrival at the bivouac area, and before tents could be set up, new missions came, committing most of the local company's men before the day was out.

Missions included placing barriers in mine fields, construction of light tactical rafts, spanning a 90-foot gap in three hours with a Bailey Bridge and many others. All tasks were performed under the critical eye of the 5th Army evaluators, who were checking the quality and speed with which the work was completed.

The Guardsmen worked around the clock during the four-day exercise, under rigorous combat conditions. At one point the entire company was reorganized as infantry, and ordered to hold a hill which had come under heavy attack from aggressor forces.

The Sikeston and Portageville Guardsmen returned to their respective armories last weekend.

After each inspection of a medical facility, a dinner was given for the tourists and European doctors to discuss current procedures and compare methods. However, when visiting Russia, no doctor attended the sessions. According to Heeb, it was not because they did not want to come, but because they were not allowed by their government.

Highlights of the tour, in a addition to seeing medical practices, hospitals and medical facilities, included visits to the Kremlin and St. Basil's Cathedral in Moscow; Skansen open-air museum in Stockholm; Petrovorets, the former palace of Czars, on the Gulf of Finland; and a cruise on Lake Lucerne in Switzerland.

When completed, Korczak Ziolkowski's sculpture of Chief Crazy Horse will measure 641 feet in length and 563 feet from top to bottom.

Missions included placing barriers in mine fields, construction of light tactical rafts, spanning a 90-foot gap in three hours with a Bailey Bridge and many others. All tasks were performed under the critical eye of the 5th Army evaluators, who were checking the quality and speed with which the work was completed.

The Guardsmen worked around the clock during the four-day exercise, under rigorous combat conditions. At one point the entire company was reorganized as infantry, and ordered to hold a hill which had come under heavy attack from aggressor forces.

The Sikeston and Portageville Guardsmen returned to their respective armories last weekend.

After each inspection of a medical facility, a dinner was given for the tourists and European doctors to discuss current procedures and compare methods. However, when visiting Russia, no doctor attended the sessions. According to Heeb, it was not because they did not want to come, but because they were not allowed by their government.

Highlights of the tour, in a addition to seeing medical practices, hospitals and medical facilities, included visits to the Kremlin and St. Basil's Cathedral in Moscow; Skansen open-air museum in Stockholm; Petrovorets, the former palace of Czars, on the Gulf of Finland; and a cruise on Lake Lucerne in Switzerland.

When completed, Korczak Ziolkowski's sculpture of Chief Crazy Horse will measure 641 feet in length and 563 feet from top to bottom.

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 11. Jesus Concludes the Sermon on the Mount

The famous Sermon on the Mount, one of the most glorious of all Christ's teachings and preachings, spells out clearly the rewards for those who turn away from evil and seek the Kingdom of Heaven. Jesus concluded this sermon by developing the analogy of two houses.

"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock." (Matthew 7:24-25)

"And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it." (Matthew 7:26-27)

Sister Elizabeth marks 50th year

HUNTINGTON, Ind. — Sister Elizabeth Hann, Our Lady of Victory Missionary Sisters, formerly of Sikeston, Mo., daughter of the late Anthony and Mary Hann, is celebrating 50 years of service in the Victory Noll congregation at the Victory Noll motherhouse here today.

Relatives of Sister Elizabeth are Sister Justina and Sister Mary Rita of the Loretto motherhouse, Nerinex, Ky.; Isadore and Urban Hann of Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Ephrem Hann and daughters Lynn and Theresa of Weil, Wis.; and Norbert Hann and sons James and Mark of Sikeston.

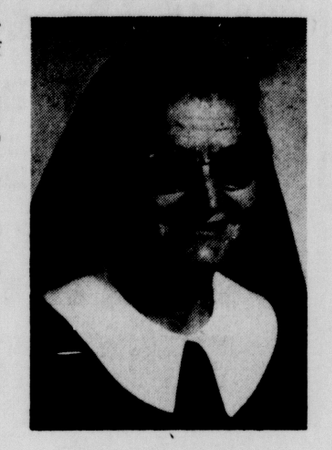

Victory Noll Sisters were founded by the late Father John J. Sigstein in 1922 to give personal, non-institutional service mainly in religious education, pastoral ministry, social work and health services. Sister Elizabeth entered the congregation on Nov. 1, 1927, and has been involved in the ministry of religious education and community maintenance in Gary, Ind., Las Vegas, N.M., and Santa Paula, Tulare, Redlands and Yucaipa, Calif.

At present, Sister Elizabeth is in the ministry of religious education in Yucaipa.

In reflecting on her years as a religious woman, she says, "Before I left home I saw the need of religious education. The work of the Victory Noll Sisters appealed to me. I entered the congregation with the intention of staying.

"My mother's advice on leaving home was, 'When things go wrong or are not to your liking, don't give up and come home. Give it a good try.' That advice has helped me through many a difficulty. I have never regretted it."

Sister Elizabeth plans to visit with her immediate relatives before returning to Uycaipa to continue her ministry.

Calvary Assembly to host bus seminar

Bill Wilson, bus director for the fastest growing church in America, West Side Assembly in Davenport, Iowa, will be the featured speaker for the annual bus seminar scheduled at Calvary Assembly, 127 W. Trotter St., at 7 o'clock on Monday and Tuesday nights, according to the Rev. T. A. McDonough, pastor.

West Side Assembly in Davenport has grown from an average attendance of 76 in 1971 to a present average attendance of more than 3,500, and much of this growth is attributed to the ministry of Bill Wilson and his co-workers in the West Side Assembly bus ministry.

The theme of the seminar is: "Street Level Strategy". The sessions are scheduled for two hours each night and will cover all facets of bus ministry, especially those areas pastors and bus workers find the most difficult to deal with: motivation, knocking on doors and financing the program.

Calvary Assembly extends an invitation to all churches to participate in this seminar. No fees are charged, and nursery care is provided for each session.

Preus says schism has united LCMS

DENVER (AP) — The head of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod says he believes the schism in the 2.8 million-member denomination actually has strengthened the church.

Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus said despite the bad effects of the division "we have solved a festering 20-year-old problem that had to be faced, and we are a more united church. We have turned the corner."

Preus, in Denver for the international meeting of the Lutheran Laymen's League, was interviewed Tuesday.

He was referring to the split early this year when about 107 churches left the synod and formed a new body, the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches. Those who left were at odds with Preus and other conservative Missouri Synod leaders over theological and political matters.

The moderates who formed the new group were aligned with more liberal views on the Bible, ordination of women and relations with other churches.

Preus said when he was first elected church president in 1969 at a Denver convention he saw three needs.

He said he wanted to "straighten out the doctrinal problem that beset us, I8fio to keep the church together and wanted to keep it go8ng."

Soon after that election Preus began questioning teaching methods and beliefs of professors at the church-owned seminary, Concordia, in St. Louis, Mo., also church headquarters.

Church moderates supported the professors with their own organization, which eventually split off into a new church.

The case of the luckless burglars

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Tom and Dick were a pair of luckless burglars. They broke into the plush offices of a large corporation late one night after $50,000 that they believed was in a safe. Their "big" caper, however, proved to be more of a "heavy" caper. The fat safe, which they had intended to cart off, weighed more than 500 pounds. After struggling with it for over two backbreaking hours, they finally decided to call it a night -- a bad one. And it got worse.

As Tom and Dick were leaving the building, they were spotted by two cruising police officers, who arrested them on charges of grand larceny. Specifically, they were charged with feloniously taking and carrying away the property of another--namely, the corporate safe.

"Those cops have some sense of humor," laughed Tom and Dick in court. "We didn't carry away the property of another. The fact is, not even Samson, with all of his hair, could have carried away that safe."

"They managed to move it six feet," retorted the arresting officers, "and since an inch is as good as a mile, at least in this case, they're guilty as charged."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict luckless Tom and Dick of grand larceny?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that even if the removal of the safe was but a hair's breadth, and in this case it was six feet, it would be sufficient to constitute the taking and carrying away of the property of another. The slightest change in the location of the safe, noted the judge, was sufficient to constitute the crime charged.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A ready-to-use spackling paste that is compatible with water-based paints.

Manufacturer's claim — That this product does not contain asbestos and is non-toxic as defined in the Federal Hazardous Substances Act ... that it is fast-drying and self-sizing ... that it offers unusual resistance to shrinking and cracking during and after drying ... that it goes on smoothly, sands easily and cleans up with warm water before drying ... that it differs from many spackling materials in its compatibility with water-based paints and that it does not bleed through and discolor paints ... and that it resists sagging when applied to vertical surfaces.

THE PRODUCT — A non-spatter pad painter.

Manufacturer's claim — That the pad painter can cover more area per paint immersion than either brushes or rollers ... that its special absorbent pad holds the paint at any angle without dripping ... that it easily gets into corners, with its scientific pad edging eliminating the need for masking ... that its features include a hand-contoured grip which easily adjusts to any painting angle and a threaded handle for extension poles ... and that the finished product more closely resembles smooth brush strokes than the effect created by rollers.

THE PRODUCT — A hydraulic grout for anchoring iron and aluminum fixtures.

Manufacturer's claim — That this pourable, cement-base grout can be used to set railings, posts, signs, fences, anchor bolts and machinery ... that it sets hard in 15 minutes, will not shrink and, because of its waterproofing qualities, will not erode ... that it contains no gypsum, sulphur or metallic particles and thus will not cause oxidation, rust or deterioration of the iron or aluminum fixtures it holds in place ... and that it is stronger than concrete.

(Home do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The spackling paste is manufactured by Bordern Chemical, 180 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43215; the pad painter by Tip Top Brush Co., 151 West Side Ave., Jersey City, N.J. 07305; and the hydraulic grout by Standard Dry Wall Products, 7800 N.W. 38th St., Miami, Fla. 33166.)

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A ready-to-use spackling paste that is compatible with water-based paints.

Manufacturer's claim — That this product does not contain asbestos and is non-toxic as defined in the Federal Hazardous Substances Act ... that it is fast-drying and self-sizing ... that it offers unusual resistance to shrinking and cracking during and after drying ... that it goes on smoothly, sands easily and cleans up with warm water before drying ... that it differs from many spackling materials in its compatibility with water-based paints and that it does not bleed through and discolor paints ... and that it resists sagging when applied to vertical surfaces.

THE PRODUCT — A non-spatter pad painter.

Manufacturer's claim — That the pad painter can cover more area per paint immersion than either brushes or rollers ... that its special absorbent pad holds the paint at any angle without dripping ... that it easily gets into corners, with its scientific pad edging eliminating the need for masking ... that its features include a hand-contoured grip which easily adjusts to any painting angle and a threaded handle for extension poles ... and that the finished product more closely resembles smooth brush strokes than the effect created by rollers.

THE PRODUCT — A hydraulic grout for anchoring iron and aluminum fixtures.

Manufacturer's claim — That this pourable, cement-base grout can be used to set railings, posts, signs, fences, anchor bolts and machinery ... that it sets hard in 15 minutes, will not shrink and, because of its waterproofing qualities, will not erode ... that it contains no gypsum, sulphur or metallic particles and thus will not cause oxidation, rust or deterioration of the iron or aluminum fixtures it holds in place ... and that it is stronger than concrete.

(Home do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The spackling paste is manufactured by Bordern Chemical, 180 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43215; the pad painter by Tip Top Brush Co., 151 West Side Ave., Jersey City, N.J. 07305; and the hydraulic grout by Standard Dry Wall Products, 7800 N.W. 38th St., Miami, Fla. 33166.)

Canalou church to dedicate new parsonage

CANALOU – A dedication program for the church parsonage will be featured during the morning service Sunday at the Canalou Assembly of God Church.

The Rev. N. Cleo Tapp, superintendent of the Southern Missouri District of the Assemblies of God, will be the guest speaker.

The fandango, a Spanish dance of the 18th century, probably came to Europe from the West Indies.

Homecoming slated at Temple Baptist

Homecoming services are scheduled Sunday at Temple Baptist Church, 200 Jackson St.

The Rev. Cecil King of O'Fallon will be an honored guest during the morning worship service. The Rev. Mr. King was pastor of Miner Baptist Church when the Temple church was established as as a mission of the Miner church in 1957.

A potluck dinner after the morning service will be followed by a singing service featuring the Gospel Messengers of Sikeston and some of the church's own musical talent.

The Rev. Marvin Butrum, pastor, encourages all present and past members and friends of the church to attend the services.

Youths to sing in East Prairie

Thirty Christian youngsters known as General Delivery U.S.A. will present "It's a Brand New Day", an hour and a half dramatic musical, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in First Christian Church at East Prairie. The group has been making appearances throughout the central United States this summer. They are accompanied by Big Dave Scroggings, president of Milk 'n' Honey Productions who has been a familiar face on "Revival Fires" and "The Life That Wins" telecasts for several years. Of General Delivery, Scroggins says he has never seen such spiritual excitement and talent in a group of young people.

Montey Allen to present concert

MOREHOUSE -- Montey Allen of East Prairie will present a vocal concert at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Morehouse Assembly of God Church.

Miss Allen will be a junior this fall at Evangel College in Springfield, where she has been a member of the choir, band and woodwind ensemble. She is also a voice and piano student at the college.

For the past three summers Montey has attended the Stamps-Blackwood School of Music at Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

Even though she was very active in music during junior and senior high school, her greatest interest has been in gospel music. During high school, she was in the choir, double sextette, madrigal and stage choir.

In 1974, she was chosen by audition to go on a concert tour of Europe with the Shenandoah Music Conservatory of Winchester, Va.

Montey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Allen of East Prairie. She attends First Assembly of God Church in East Prairie, where she is active in the music program.

She will be accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Bouler of Charleston.

Youths to sing in East Prairie

Thirty Christian youngsters known as General Delivery U.S.A. will present "It's a Brand New Day", an hour and a half dramatic musical, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in First Christian Church at East Prairie. The group has been making appearances throughout the central United States this summer. They are accompanied by Big Dave Scroggings, president of Milk 'n' Honey Productions who has been a familiar face on "Revival Fires" and "The Life That Wins" telecasts for several years. Of General Delivery, Scroggins says he has never seen such spiritual excitement and talent in a group of young people.

Montey Allen to present concert

MOREHOUSE – Montey Allen of East Prairie will present a vocal concert at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Morehouse Assembly of God Church.
